Pa. State Grange Holds Annual Convention

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

WEST MIDDLESEX (Mercer Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange held its annual convention recently at the Raddison in West Middlesex and adopted some policies on a number of issues to forward during the National Grange Convention, under way in Harrisburg.

The Pennsylvania State Grange has 33,000 members in 66 counties and is a rural and agricultural organization dedicated to making the state a better place to live through legislative action, community service and member services.

One of the oldest agricultural and rural organizations in the United States, it develops policy locally, further refining it at the state level, and also at the national level.

In addition to policy development, the Pa. State Grange also honors outstanding achievements by members, and holds contests, such as talent and sign-language.

State Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius addressed the convention and called upon the Grange to pass resolutions that will guide the administration toward policies that will make agriculture a more profitable and viable industry.

Brosius said that the Grange's 123 years of service to agriculture and rural communities is commendable and asked that the Grange keep providing "the power that comes from speaking as one voice."

The agriculture secretary said, "We need your input. We need to know what the Grange thinks. We appreciate your resolutions and the time you've put into them to make agriculture an even greater

Farmland Trust Honors Land Benefactors, Boyd

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — "Remember, land is not inherited from our parents but borrowed from our children," Darvin E. Boyd, outgoing president for Lancaster Farmland Trust, told the 400 supporters attending the annual dinner meeting on Nov. 3.

"There is no more noble cause than to enhance the life of future generations," he said.

It was for this reason that three more families donated a perpetual conservation easement to Lancaster Farmland Trust. The donation of an easement prevents development while the farm continues to stay in private ownership.

Although Dr. Floyd and Ruth Landis no longer live on the 78-acre Upper Leacock farm, they wanted to make sure that it remained a working farm.

"It's too good of land to do anything else with it," Landis said of the farm that his father Aaron had purchased in 1912.

"He worked hard to save the farm through the Depression. Now, I'm doing this to honor him," Landis said of the family's decision to preserve the farmland.

Ethel Van Natta and her brother Ai Rorabaugh Jr. also decided to preserve the family farm in honor of their father.

"It was my father's wish," Van Natta said of the 53-acre Providence Township farm, which has been in the family since 1910.

Ethel Stephan also donated the easement on her Lititz farm. "It was my husband's dream place," Stephen said of the farm that she describes as a 17-acre horse farm with a "million dollar view."

Benefactor awards also went to Frances Bear, Joseph and Malinda Fisher, Bob and Carolyn Kilgour, Brooke Minnich, Richard Minnich, and Mary Schantz, for donating easements.

These farms are a legacy of what Boyd described as "a living national treasure flourishing to the ongoing quality of life rather than a historical monument."

The trust's executive director Alan Musselman said that the trust has preserved 60 farms totaling 4,000 acres since the trust's inception seven years ago.

Farmers' Export/Import Group Writes Russian Partnership

EVERETT NEWSWANGER

RONKS (Lancaster Co.) — The Russians came to Lancaster County last week with visits to the farms of Jack Coleman, Ronks, Ed Harnish, Christiana, and Charles Tindall, Peach Bottom. And the Russians went home this week with a partnership agreement between them and a group of farmers known as the Pennsylvania Producers Research and Development Commission, Inc. The commission, a fledgling trade association with the purpose to export and import farm and other products, has 500 members in Southeast Pennsylvania, many of them Amish.

After John Best, Holtwood, commission treasurer, and Allen Weicksel, commission director, visited St. Petersburg, last month, the Russian businessman, George Komissarov and Yuri Ivanov, St. Petersburg's chief TV cameraman, along with Irene Souchkava, interpreter and employee of the commission, made a return visit at the commission's expense to check out the products and services that are available in Southeast Pennsylvania.

As a result of these visits from halfway around the world, an official partnership agreement was signed as the first step in the distribution chain the commission hopes to develop so that nutritional products can find their way from here

Department Of Ag Hears Cries Of Help From Family Farms

ANDY ANDREWS

GUTHRIESVILLE (Chester Co.) — More than 150 Chester County Cooperative Extension representatives and friends gathered on Thursday evening for the annual meeting and banquet at the Guthriesville Fire Hall.

What they learned is that, in these extremely trying times for farm families, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is hearing their cries for help — and admitting there is a lot of work to be done.

Often, according to Charles C. Brosius, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, the department receives a letter from a farm family that is seeking economic help.

Delmarva Broiler

NOVEMBER 8, 1995

Movement of ready-to-cook whole broiler/fryers continued good in most quarters and offerings were generally no more than adequate. Live supplies varied, but were about moderate overall; weights were mixed in a full range of light to heavy. Processing schedules were very heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were 1 cent higher at 59 to 70 cents. Trade sentiment was fully steady to mostly firm. Boneless skinless breasts were ample for current needs. Bone-in breasts, leg items and wings cleared well at most plants. Tenders were available and slow to clear.

NE Chicken Pts 1&2

NOVEMBER 8, 1995

Trucklot buying interest was mixed with majority of traders still cautious as they plan for seasonal item receipts. Offerings were limited as several plants worked reduced schedules. Retail and distributive movement was slightly better than expected but most dealers had sufficient floor stocks to cover needs. The market tone was steady to fully steady on all but boneless/skinless breasts.

NY Phil Frozen Eggs

NOVEMBER 9, 1995

Prices were higher. The market tone was fully steady to firm. Demand remained generally moderate with most inquiry centered on immediate needs. Floor stocks were usually adequate, but replacement costs increased as shell and liquid egg prices increased. Breaking stock supplies were tight to adequate and held with confidence for higher prices. Liquid and frozen eggs processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending November 4, 1995 were 4% greater than last week, and 6% less than the same week last year.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
NOVEMBER 8, 1995

Wheat and corn bids were slightly lower due to light profit taking on the board. Soybean bids finished mixed, pressured by fund selling and reports of beneficial rains in Argentina. However, some support was noted as traders await tomorrow's USDA Crop Production report. Wheat 1 to 2 cents lower. Corn 1 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum 1 to 2 cents lower. Soybeans mixed, 2 cents lower to 4 cents higher. Wheat bids turned slightly lower after two days of higher trends. Fund selling pressured bids due to a slowdown in export demand and some possible cancellations. Also, India's wheat crop is estimated at 65 million metric tons, about six million metric tons higher than the previous record for India.

Lower corn bids, despite the good export sales this week, were due to profit taking on the board and a pickup in farmer selling. The Crop Production report and Supply/Demand reports will be out tomorrow. Soybean bids were mixed, mostly lower except for Kansas City bids. The lack of fresh export news this week has kept bean bids pointing southward. Some support was seen due to light farmer selling and some fund buying on the board. Traders are waiting to see wheat the USDA will say tomorrow in their Crop Production report.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

NOVEMBER 13-19, 1995

DISCOVERY DAY, PUERTO RICO, NOV. 19.

PLANETARY PARTY

In another week, we'll be gathering for Thanksgiving, but this week the planets are coming together for a preliminary starlight conjunction. On the 16th, Mars will be just a degree south of Jupiter, and Venus will pass nearly as close to Jupiter on the 19th, pursuing Mars until dusk on the 22nd. By Thanksgiving night next week, the new crescent Moon will join the gathering of Jupiter, Venus, and Mars. In Roman religion, Mars was the god of war, although in earlier times he was associated with agriculture. The seasons on Mars, our closest planet, correspond roughly to those on Earth, but temperatures in the Martian winter go to -90° F.

Art is I. Science is we.

— Claude Bernard

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ If there is no shoehorn handy, fold an envelope and use it as you would the horn.

Place onion and beef in a 3-quart ungreased casserole Combine stock, herbs, and barley in the skillet and bring to a boil Pour this over the beef, cover, and bake at 350° F for an hour Garnish with parsley and serve with French bread.

Makes 4 servings.

OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
NOVEMBER 8, 1995

Compared to last week: Feeder cattle and calves over 600 lbs steady to 2.00 higher. Demand good for cattle destined to feedlots. Steer and heifer calves under 600 lbs steady with fairly good demand. Quality of supply average at best. Weigh condition of yearlings average to full; calves average. Flesh condition of yearlings mostly medium; calf flesh continues highly varied from slightly thin to moderately fleshy. However calf flesh still improving each week for buyers with medium flesh becoming the norm. Wheat pasture prospects are dismal in Oklahoma. A minimal number of calves will go to wheat before February. With $5.00 wheat it is likely that wheat grazing will be limited in final half of the season also. Slaughter cows steady. Slaughter bulls 50 higher. Packer demand moderate. Utility cows most popular among buyers, however only few to choose from. Near 775 cows and bulls sold with 70 percent going to packers. Receipts this week 10,725; last week 12,489; last year 14,060. Supply consisted of 49 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 44 percent calves under 600 lbs; 7 percent cows and bulls. OPINION

Recently the world heard about a memorable baseball event—Cal Ripken, in breaking an old record held by Lou Gehrig, set a new one for consecutive games played. A hero to the people of Baltimore and to baseball fans everywhere, Cal Ripken is a dedicated, committed individual with a strong work ethic. But so are many in the American work force—workers who go unrecognized and unsung.

Without detracting from Ripken's accomplishments, we can acknowledge the many individuals who strive daily in the field of agriculture and who exhibit the same straightforward dedication and unending commitment to their jobs of producing food.

Scores of farmers work from daylight to dark producing food for people in Delaware and beyond. These stewards of the land labor during times of ill health, high stress, foul weather and uncertainty to put food on America's tables at a cost much less than in any other country.

The livestock farmer is on the job every day year-round. The dairy producer milks cows two or three times each day, 365 days a year. Poultry growers tend their chickens twice a day, making sure that feed is always available and the environment in the house is safe and healthy. Beef and hog producers also must provide daily care to their animals.

Grain and vegetable producers are committed to the job of what and when to plant their crops. They work, despite bad weather, to plant, cultivate, and harvest for optimal production. Dry conditions make irrigation necessary, requiring long hours and some sleepless nights to ensure that the crops get adequate water. Hot, dry summers take a severe toll on unirrigated crops as well as livestock and animal performance, reducing profits and increasing emotional stress on the grower.

Yet these people, like Cal Ripken, never give up. They are our American farmers. It is time we salute them, too, for their hard work and dedication, which benefits us all.

Now Is The Time

To Provide Fresh Air To Calves

As outside temperatures drop, farmers could be tempted to house young calves indoors with older cows and heifers.

To help keep the barn warmer, they might close windows and air inlets.

According to Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, that could be a big, big mistake. It jeopardizes the health of the herd and the lives of the calves.

Calves need fresh air. If calves are housed indoors, it is much more important that the air is kept fresh rather than warm. The air should flow from the calf area to the older animals, not vice versa.

Warm moist air from the cow area when pulled into the calf area, exposes the calves to more disease causing organisms and it increases the humidity of the air in the calf area.

Both conditions are unhealthy for calves. Ideally, they should be housed separately for several months, until they have developed sufficient immunity to protect them from disease causing organisms from older animals.

To Prepare Calves For Cold Weather

Calves do not need warm housing. However, they do need to be fed more energy on cold days to help them generate more body heat.

This may be accomplished by feeding more milk and grain or offering calves feed of higher energy content. Then we need to help calves retain their body heat.

Their hair coat is an excellent insulator if it is clean, dry and protected from prevailing winds.

Remember, cold, wet surfaces pull heat away from the body. Thus, clean, dry bedding is very important.

To Increase Crop Yields

Looking for a way to increase crop yields? Consider information available from university research trails which compare varieties.

Penn State Agronomy Department conducts trails for corn, soybean, wheat, barley, oats and many forage crops including alfalfa, red clover, and many grass species.

According to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, plant breeders are constantly improving the productivity of plants by selecting plants which produce more or are less susceptible to insects and diseases.

Penn State has released the 1995 Pennsylvania Winter Wheat and Barley Performance Tests. The test at Landisville, Lancaster County, showed the five best wheat varieties grown this year produced between 123 and 128 bushels per acre and had bushel weights between 55.2 and 57.5 pounds per bushel. That compares to the old standard Redcoat which produced 95 bushels per acre with a weight of 57.3 pounds per bushel in the same test.

Similar results were seen for barley. In 1995 the best barley produced 162 bushels per acre compared to 112 bushels per acre produced by the standard Barsoy.

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

I am enclosing a news article I have written to include in your paper.

You will be able to look up the data I have researched by using the Market Report listed for the Dewart Livestock Auction. Recorded Oct. 31, 1995.

I have tried to report facts along with inserting a little humor, since it appears we farmers have to be good natured to keep things going when the going gets tough.

I hope you will be interested in printing the article. Inaccurate reports to farmers are very serious, the extra money that we had projected to make on our animal, would have paid another bill at our farm.

Everything has become a critical issue to the farmer at this time. Everyone dealing with agriculture should be able to have papers publish a correct market analysis. The analysis helps projecting to sell at the farm or market.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

RESOLVING CONFLICT
November 12, 1995

Resolving Conflict
November 12, 1995

Background Scripture:
Acts 15:1-35

Devotional Reading:
Romans 3:21-31

Sooner or later in religion it comes down to this—or something similar: "But some men came down from Judea and were teaching the brethren, 'Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved'" (Acts 15:1).

I don't mean that "sooner or later" circumcision becomes an issue, but that inevitably our bright spiritual horizons become clouded with human conflict over religious belief and practice. The problem is not with the various beliefs and practices that are meaningful to us, but our conviction that others must adopt these to be full-fledged followers of Jesus Christ.

I can respect the Christian commitment of both those who practice infant baptism and those who practice infant dedication. Or of those who prefer to take Communion in the pews instead of at the rail, of "trespassers" as well as "debtors," of those who observe only two sacraments as well as those who observe seven. I have little patience with those who, instead of living by the gospel as they perceive it, spend their efforts trying to get others to do so.

What Is Necessary?

Ideally, Christians ought to have fewer conflicts than others, but I don't think it works out that way. Actually, the key is in the way we resolve them. Very often, if we resolve them constructively, we may grow in the process. This is what happened in the early church. When some insisted on circumcision and the laws of Moses as essential for all Christians, church leaders met the challenge in a straight-forward manner.

The deliberations were based not so much upon ideology, as upon testimony to what God had been doing in their midst. Peter reminded them that God had bestowed the Holy Spirit upon uncircumcised Gentiles as well as circumcised Jewish Christians. This experience had been in direct contradiction to what he believed. Paul and Barnabas testified to the "signs and wonders God had done through them among the Gentiles" (15:12). The appeal was to the church's experience, not its belief systems.

Peter also reminds them that none of them will be saved by circumcision or following the laws of Moses. "But we believe that we will be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, just as they will" (15:11). All of us, even those of us with the "right beliefs and practices" are solely dependent upon the grace of God.

Only Grace!

So the leaders of the church resolved the conflict in a positive manner and, instead of thundering threats to the gentile Christians, in their letter to them spoke persuasively rather than commandingly. Three times, they say, "it seemed good to us..." (15:22, 25, 28), rather than setting forth dogmatic pronouncements.

We live today in a world where most conflicts are settled either by force or litigation, often unsatisfactorily in the long run. Unfortunately, instead of showing the world how conflicts can be resolved peacefully and constructively, the churches have often provided some of the most glaring examples of how not to solve conflict.

But the Jerusalem Conference gives us a good example, reminding us that we are saved, not by our clever ideologies and rituals, but by the same grace of God that is available to all. As Alan Paton writes, "The tragedy is not that things are broken. The tragedy is that they are not mended again."

CHORE-TIME

Dedicated to PRODUCER LEADERSHIP

Farm life puts a different perspective on the weather. You don't go in to an air-conditioned office from nine to five—most of the time you don't go in. You're out in the elements every day. So you don't need to be worrying about health insurance.

When you belong to the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau you don't have to.

PFB membership brings the option of affordable health care insurance to all our members through Blue Cross and Blue Shield, including:

- First dollar coverage for 365 in-hospital days
- One million dollar Major Medical coverage ($500 deductible)
- Dependent children covered to age 19 (23 if full-time student)
- Mail order prescription drug program
- Optional dental and vision plans

You can't forecast the weather, but with Blue Cross and Blue Shield you can plan for that rainy day when you or a family member may need reliable health care.

Bureau 'Visits' South America At Banquet

JOANNE E. MORVAY
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Members of the Carroll County Farm Bureau recently spent an hour visiting South America and the Pacific Rim at the county's annual banquet.

The brief trip was a narrated slide show courtesy of Maryland Farm Bureau President C. William Knill. Knill, of Mt. Airy, visited both areas as a member of American Farm Bureau Federation trade delegations. The former dairyman is in his second term as Maryland Farm Bureau president. The world traveller raises beef cattle, grain and vegetables when he's not on the road.

Knill said trade missions are important because they provide a firsthand look at agriculture and food consumption in potential markets for the United States' commodities. In some cases, such as his journey to South America earlier this year, delegation members also gain important information about the U.S.'s competitors in the world trade arena, Knill said. "We (also) gain insight as to how to address public policy regarding trade issues," he said.

Meetings with foreign government officials and farm leaders along with the U.S. liaisons to other countries help foster relationships that could later develop into trade alliances, Knill said.

Knill's 1994 trip to the Pacific Rim began in Hong Kong. The eighth largest importer of goods from the United States, Hong Kong, also exports 50 percent of the American products and commodities it receives to other Asian nations including China and Japan.

Knill said in this economic center of the Pacific Rim, there are no supermarkets carrying "anything and everything." Instead, consumers shop for items in individual stores and stands. Most residents shop daily for fresh produce, meat and seafood — an old habit stemming from the days when refrigeration was scarce, he said.

Wholesale and retail markets — comprised of many different vendors specializing in one type of product — abound, Knill said. Hong Kong imports produce from around the world, such as the California lemons Knill saw a merchant sorting.

C. William Knill, a Mt. Airy beef, vegetable and grain farmer, is in his second term as Maryland Farm Bureau president. He has participated in two American Farm Bureau Federation trade visits — the first to the Pacific Rim and this year to South America.

Seafood — fish, eels and the like — are kept alive in tanks until a buyer arrives and chooses one to take home. Meat is also butchered practically while you wait — in many markets live chickens were kept in cages right next to just slaughtered carcasses, Knill said. Fresh meat is hung in the open air at the markets. Knill said while this is not considered sanitary in the U.S., "I cannot recall seeing a fly while I was in Hong Kong."

From Hong Kong, Knill and the AFBF delegation took a nearly four-hour train ride to Guangzhou, a large city in what was previously the Canton section of China. Guangzhou is situated near the Pearl River, which flows into the South China Sea, making it one of the major trade corridors into China, Knill said.

Guangzhou is home to 65 million people and an increase of 10 to 12 million people is expected because of growth and development, he said. This mirrors the expected growth of China as a nation. There is a population net gain of one million people per month in China for a total of 14 million people per year, Knill said.

"Someone will have to help feed these people," he said.

He expects that China will try to finance that trade by increasing the amount of tourism the Communist nation allows. Knill said China has much history to draw on and many impressive sights, expecially the Great Wall of China. Though restrictions are loosening now, the government still has tight control over free enterprise, he said. Chinese tourist spots, for example, are not surrounded by trinket and souvenir shops the way American places are.

While Knill and the AFBF delegation were in China, the country sponsored its first ever Food and Hotel Exposition. Knill said commodity groups from many nations were represented including the U.S. Poultry and Egg Board and the National Dairy Board. Australia and New Zealand were the best represented countries, Knill noted. "They're already targeting China," he said.

Knill's travels in China included stops in Beijing and the area surrounding this capital city. It was there that Knill was struck by the similarities of the problems that American and Chinese farmers face, he said.

The loss of productive farmland is also a serious concern in China. "Seeing how growth was killing their opportunity to feed themselves was hauntingly similar" to what American farmers are being forced to deal with, Knill said. "You could pick up a paper there and replace the names with names from Maryland, Pennsylvania or Virginia and swear you were reading a paper here."

Knill said almost 70 percent of China is considered rural. Farmers in the areas he visited plant crops on raised beds using flood irrigation for water. Chinese tractors, in many cases, resemble "golf carts with tractor parts," Knill said. The bicycle is the Chinese transportation mode of choice. Knill saw many three-wheeled bikes with carts mounted on the back wheel — a vehicle he christened "the Chinese pickup truck."

Farm duties that have been mechanized in the U.S. are still done by hand in China, Knill said. He saw women walking through fields planting corn — dropping a few kernels per hill. Chinese farmers tend to cut corn greener than it is harvested in the U.S., Knill said. It usually has a test weight in the low forties when harvested, he explained. This allows Chinese farmers to get another crop of corn in a timely fashion.

Harvested corn is hauled in from the field and shocked by hand. Harvested corn and soybeans are piled in roadways. "They let the horses, bikes and cars run over it. When it's dry, they rake up the stems and sweep up the grain," Knill said.

Before leaving China, Knill and the AFBF delegation visited a feed mill and a hog farm. The hog operation, run cooperatively with the government, feeds its waste into a large pond. The waste spurs algae growth which supports a Farmland Trust honors Darvin Boyd for his outstanding service to the organization during his six years on the board. With Boyd are his wife Linda, and children, Kevin, 21; Brian, 12, and Cindi, 17.

Farmland Trust Honors Land Benefactors, Boyd

"Among 1,100 land trusts throughout the country, none have accomplished what we have here," Musselman said.

While the trust has a membership of 2,300 people, Musselman admonished, "Membership should be at 23,000, and the investment fund jump from six figures to the millions."

Boyd was honored with a special award and a standing ovation for his six years of working tirelessly for the organization.

"It is a great honor," Boyd said of the award. "I believe there is no greater cause than church and my good Lord than to keep ag as a strong viable part of the county. Others say you can't do anything about it (land development). But you can. We believe in progress but only so much land has Class one soil."

Board member Gene Garber, who was also honored with a distinguished service award for his six years on the board.

For outstanding volunteer service, members of the Earl Township Farmland Preservation Trust were recognized.

Selected as officers for the upcoming year are Phyllis Whitesell, president; Dorothy Lyet, vice president; Kenneth Messner, secretary; and Paul Whipple, treasurer.

In rousing support of farmland, Kirsten Kauffman, 4-H superior achievement award winner, and Joy Young, president of the county FFA, spoke of the need to save farmland step by step, property by property. "No farmland — no crops. It's that simple," Kirsten said. "To sacrifice the farm is to sacrifice the beauty given us."

Joy said that farming should not be considered temporary use until development, but the non-farming sector should be made aware that farming is the number one industry in the county.

Kristine Patterson, director of development, recounted the fundraising events held throughout the year. Purchase of easements are made with private funds only since no government funding is received.

Patterson said that the campaign goal is $160,000 and that $82,000 has been received to date.

George C. Delp was honored as the person who made the major single financial contribution in the last year.

The evening ended with an auction, lead by auctioneer Eric Probst. All items were donated to the trust for proceeds to go toward funding.

P.L. Rohrer Cooperates With Corn Trials

SMOKETOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Selection of a plant variety to use on the farm can not be done through a popularity contest.

And so it is that varieties are tested and developed for specific markets and needs.

Corn variety development and the research and trials performed to analyze performance are done in such a manner so that, with the help of knowledgable seed salesmen, the farmer who knows his farm can select a variety that works with his program.

Soil types, weather extremes, uses for the corn plant, operational "windows" for planting, harvest and storage, etc., all make for individual selection of varieties.

It also benefits farmers when local seed distributors participate in trials. This way localized data can be used to compare and develop varieties.

Last week, at P.L. Rohrer Seeds, owned by P.L. Rohrer & Bros. Inc., in Smoketown, a two-man crew from Pau Seeds Inc., of Ames, Iowa, arrived to harvest test plots of hybrid varieties in development.

The relationship between seed retailer, seed dealer and plant breeder is strong, but independent.

Rohrer Bros. is a local dealer of AgriPro Seeds. Wayne B. Knerr is district sales manager for AgriPro, and Pau Seeds Inc. is a plant breeding operation.

Over the years, while company and business relationships have changed, the success of the development and availability of improved varieties of corn still relies mostly on cooperation between the people doing the actual field work.

Phil Bartlett, assistant breeder for Pau Seeds Inc., drives an old, customized two-row combine with specialized compartments for weighing and testing corn moisture. The combine is used by the company to harvest a Lancaster County test plot strip and derive yield and performance data.

Wayne B. Knerr, district sales manager for AgriPro Seeds, of Elmer, N.J., pulls back the husk from some trial hybrid corn to give it a visual check, though the real analysis comes from yield and moisture calculations and stalk strength tests.

Years ago, the commercial plant variety developer was generally also the selector of beneficial characteristics and also the seed dealer.

But that type of business arrangement doesn't necessarily guarantee that a company would be in line with farmer needs, nor does it ensure that the farmer got the best varieties.

If one business managed risk and cash flow the same for each aspect of developing and retailing plant varieties, there could be a tendancy for decisions to be made without a complete understanding of what was best for that specific aspect of operation.

In other words, the financial risk and overhead that is tied up in plant development limits the ability of a single company to recoup losses — if that company wants to be the sole retailer of all genetic lines.

Instead, the whole business today is separated and managed to maximize the efficiencies and efforts of each different aspects of plant variety development.

Pau Seeds independently develops varieties and markets them openly, although AgriPro gets right of first refusal and Rohrer gets to sell only what best suits the needs of its clientelle.

To join the people promoting the American Farmer, just say:

KING ME

Northrup King and customers are telling the world about the value of farm crops – and the people who grow them. We're excited about what's happening – and we're proud to support farmers – especially when we can also support you with great varieties – starting with a yield producer like this one.

New N4640 Want extremely high, stable yields of dry grain? This new corn hybrid is like having a solar-fueled dryer. Superior stalk strength and ear retention, plus very good staygreen, make N4640 a good choice for field drying. Heavy test weight grain dries down very fast. Outstanding drought tolerance, too. For top yields of field dry grain, ask us about N4640 hybrid corn.

N7448 When growing gets rough, you need corn you can count on. Like N7448. Superior staygreen, standability and drought tolerance – plus a good foliar disease package – help this hybrid cut through tough growing conditions like a sicklebar in grass. It's well-suited for both no-till and continuous corn production. For yields you can rely on, plant N7448 hybrid corn.

One letter, Brosius told those at the banquet, he received spoke about a fourth generation farm that was suffering from the costly drought this past summer. The dairy was trying to sustain itself on milk prices the same as 14-15 years ago. The family believed they had no option but to sell out in the spring.

According to Brosius, the family asked the department, "what can you do for us?"

The state government "has the opportunity and ability to reduce taxes," said Brosius, but if the farmer does not profit, he doesn't pay income taxes. Brosius said what the state government has the power to do is control the costly regulations — what he calls "another form of taxation through over-compliance" — and provide more educational opportunities with the help of cooperative extension to help the farmer sustain.

Soil and resource conservation remains the "major issue that agriculture faces in the commonwealth," said Brosius. He believes that farmers were the "original environmentalists" and care deeply about land stewardship. But farmers must work, said the secretary of agriculture, to "enlist the support of suburban neighbors to raise their awareness to and responsibility for our environment as well."

Famers are faced with the 1995 Farm Bill, which will show drastic reductions in federal farm program support; the state nutrient management regulations, a result of the failure of state voluntary programs to curb nitrate contamination of the Chesapeake Bay; the fact that so many farms — 70 percent and rising — have family members who are employed off the farm to help the farm sustain; and that the farms and businesses of today will "not be the farms and businesses of tomorrow" as a result of constant changes, including increasing urbanization.

As a result, the department will continue to evaluate the effectiveness and efficiencies of the groups appointed, said Brosius, and make sure the agencies will continue to work toward helping the farmer remain profitable.

Brosius praised those in extension, which he called "a big part of my life since I was a youngster, and which meant a great deal to me and my family when I was growing up."

At the banquet, Dr. Gary J. San Julian, regional director of the Penn State southeast cooperative extension, spoke about the ways in which extension works to provide, through 4-H and other programs, "possible bags" for youth.

The "possible bag" was a bag that was tied to the neck, carried by forefathers to this country, containing tinder, steel, and flint — the supplies necessary to live in the wilderness in case the necessary items in the pack were lost or stolen.

San Julian said the material in the "skin bag between their ears and eyes" is the "possible bag" to help adults and young people "develop skills to help in education" and thus to help them get through life.

He encouraged those present to help adults and youth in the county "build their possible bags" through the many extension programs available.

Jody Hewitt, a graduate of the Pennsylvania Governor's School, spoke about her experiences in the program. The program, lasting five weeks, was conducted this past summer from July 2 to Aug. 5 at Penn State.

Only 64 sophomores and juniors participated in the program. Jody, 16, daughter of Robert and Danielle Hewitt, Spring City, is a junior at Owen J. Roberts High School. Jody said the school was a "great experience" where she "learned a lot about ag and people."

At the meeting, Russ Albright provided an update on the Romano 4-H Center. The first building's plan has been finalized and the site work has been done on the entranceway. The building construction is in the bidding stage, and Albright said the first building would start construction in early spring. Cattle could be exhibited in the new barn "next year" he said.

Also, Laurie Anne Albrecht was noted to serve a three-year term on the county cooperative extension.

Workshop Held For Vets, Nutritionists

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

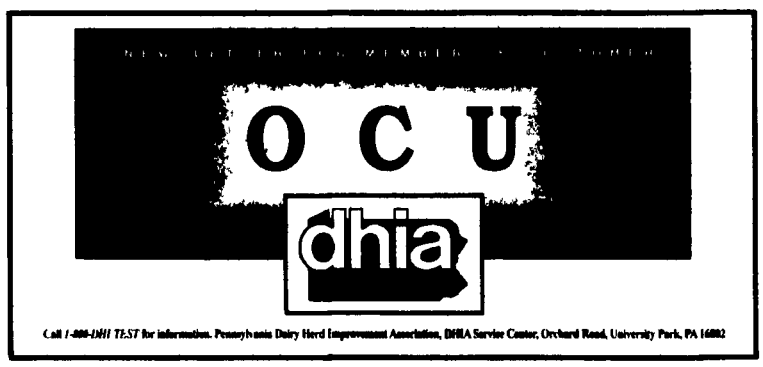
UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—On Nov. 1, Pa. DHIA held a milk urea nitrogen (MUN) workshop for veterinarians and nutritionists at the Bird-In-Hand Family Restaurant in Lancaster County.

The keynote speaker was Dr. James Ferguson, associate professor of nutrition at the New Bolton Center, University of Pennsylvania. The main objective was to update and educate the vets and nutritionists on the new milk urea nitrogen testing.

Statewide there are currently more than 600 herds enrolled on the MUN option. Ninety-five percent of the Pa. DHIA memberships in Lancaster County are participating in the program. A member can receive these results at an additional 15 cents per cow. However, non-members can receive results through the sample analysis program.

Dean Amick, director of field operations, and David Slusser, general manager of Pa. DHIA, gave a few remarks concerning the success of the MUN testing as well as updated the audience on the performance economics program that will be available to the membership in the near future. This program will assist the dairymen in tracking costs associated with their farms. This program will be available at no extra cost to the dairymen.

Please feel free to contact your DHIA technician of Pa. DHIA at 1-800-344-8378, if you have any questions concerning MUN testing.



Lancaster Workshops Set

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pa. DHIA will hold three workshops in the Lancaster County area on the new milk urea nitrogen (MUN) testing. These workshops are open to dairymen in Lancaster and surrounding counties.

The workshop is to feature professional speakers, with Dr. Linda Baker, VMD, keynoting the discussion on the MUN testing. Reproduction, herd health and underfeeding or overfeeding protein can directly affect the MUN levels in a cow. Dr. Baker brings a wealth of knowledge due to her extensive research on this subject.

Each workshop is slated to begin at 11 a.m. and end at 1 p.m. with lunch being provided.

The three workshop dates and locations are Nov. 20, Willow Street, at the Willow Valley Restaurant; Nov. 21, New Holland, Yoder's Restaurant; and Nov. 22, in Mt. Joy, at the Country Table Restaurant.

P.L. Rohrer Cooperates

and marketing outlet to the United States for French-owned Co-op De Pau, the third largest seed company in Europe.

They do research on wheat, soybeans and corn and make the varieties available to AgriPro.

Through close contact with AgriPro, and through helping with making test plots available for developing hybrid varieties, Rohrer Bros. stays on top of what is being offered and how it compares.

Through established and continuing communication with farmer-customers, Rohrer Bros. is able to represent them better in development and availability of varieties that will perform best.

Last week, Wayne B. Knerr, was on hand to help the Pau Seeds crew harvest trial varieties and collect data.

Phil Bartlett, assistant breeder for Pau Seeds Inc., drove an old, customized two-row combine with specialized compartments for weighing and testing corn moisture. The combine is kept locally and has been used for years to harvest Lancaster County test plots for yield and performance data.

Bartlett said he is an assistant breeder for the company and has been working with the company for 15 years, based out of Brookston, Indiana. Along with him was a technician, Todd DeLong, who performed moisture and yield calculations in the research combine.

The two had traveled from Brookston in order to harvest the plots, which took about four hours.

While the data they gathered is to be compiled and compared against other varieties, Bartlett said that the Smoketown trial site provided by P.L. Rohrer Bros. provides good data. "This is the extreme east (of the geographic area the company uses to conduct trials), but it provides good data."

He explained that back in the mid-West growing conditions are very good and also consistent, whereas here conditions are much more diverse — more plant pests, diseases and varying humidity and weather.

This makes this area very good to test hybrid varieties because the more and different stresses that varieties can be subject to, the better desired traits can be selected.

He said that the drought and pest problems of this year actually can help breeders arrive at their breeding goals much faster, by making it easier to narrow down those varieties which can make the cut.

Also, he said the this area helps the company with its marketability of its offerings because "What you need for Europe is what you need for here."

He said he specifically is looking for high yield, standability and disease resistance.

They don't work with recombinant-DNA genetically altered varieties right now, nor are they working with varieties specifically for silage, or specifically for higher starch content.

According to Bartlett, over the seven test plot sites (35 acres total) he has been working with, he evaluates about 400 varieties. At the Smoketown site, he said he had about 250 different hybrids in the one-acre test plot.

At a Mexico nursery, the parent stock are kept and hand germinated to produce different varieties for testing next year, and for reevaluating those varieties that succeeded in making it to a second trial.

The goal of Pau Seeds is to become a completely indepent breeder stressing elite inbred stock or proprietary hybrids.

The difference is in who owns the rights to parent stock. Currently, the company has some of its own elite female stock, while pollinating with other male stock.

Farmer's Export/Import

into the export market. The partnership gives the commission a business foothold in Russia eliminating some of the restraints on foreign businesses in that country and provides a contact all the way through to the end consumer.

Komissarov came to the U.S. with a list of products he wanted to move into his country if the quality and the price were right. After the partnership was signed last Saturday, the search began for manufactured products that fit the foreign buyer's needs. By November 25 officials of the commission plan to have a $125,000 order for corn starch, corn oil, and cream cheese ready for their first export shipment.

Coleman and Best told Lancaster Farming on Wednesday that the commission wants to cooperate with processors and farm cooperatives.

"Because we are a bunch of farmers we have been able to develop a grass roots communication with these people from Russia and other countries that is not always available to those at higher levels of the distribution chain," Coleman said. "But we need the input of our processors and farm cooperatives to help us with the know-how and the manufactured products to keep things moving forward."

Best agreed. "We do not plan to withdraw from or replace existing cooperatives. Our goal lies in the reduction of surpluses by exporting them. In addition, we hope to put fewer brokers between the farmer and the consumer of our farm products."

The organization of the commission has revolved around the incorporation of two companies with dual memberships that give voting privileges and 100 percent shares of the dividends to farm producers only. A different class of membership has been offered for non-producers with no voting privilege and only a 25 percent share of the dividends.

Up to October 1, each membership was sold for $100 and 500 farmers and other interested investors tied into the commission. At present no new memberships are being offered. After January 1, 1996, additional memberships may be sold with an unofficial figure discussed at $4,000 each.

"We really don't know if the commission will make it or not," Best said. "but we now have more offers to buy products than we are able to supply with our present efforts to develop sources of products for export. And we read in the papers that farmers should diversify and develop new enterprises. For us this is one way to try to diversify."

While the local foreign trade group has already found it may be hard to compete with the European market, they have eliminated the broker's commission their Russian partnership. In addition, the trend in other countries is to deal more directly with the producer. This gives the commission another advantage. And because many different farm commodities are available in Southeast Pennsylvania, the foreign buyers can get all the different products they want right from the commission.

Products to be offered include corn starch, corn oil, cream cheese, powdered milk, poultry, pork, and beef products.

With the first partnership in place and the prospect of the first shipment due out later this month, enthusiasm is running high. Many farmers have called this a historic moment in the life of Pennsylvania Agriculture.

I still have questions could this incorrect report lure good animals out of the farmers barns to make buyers more profit. Is there a possible kickback? This might be a good story for you to report on. Start talking to livestock haulers!

Thanks for your help.

Fact or Fiction

As a dairy farmer I have been pondering how so many farmers receive such high prices at the local auctions.

This past week our farm decided, based on market prices listed in farm papers, that it might be a little more profitable for us to send our two year old open heifer to auction. Since the market report stated fat heifers were bringing at least $0.50 we had figured our heifer would bring home $500, however, what a fiction story our projection was. Based on the actual Livestock Auction price we received $338.62 for a 1060 lb. heifer, on October 30, 1995.

Since we dairy farmers are a curious lot, my husband and I decided to check on the market report, once again. To our knowledge there were only at best four heifers at the poorly attended auction! What surprised us was that heifers brought between $0.52 to $0.59 a pound. Breaking Utility and Commercial Cows brought $34.25 to $37.10. This report was not an error it will be published in all farm papers, but it appears to be a fictitious one.

Being an inquisitive person I decided to investigate. I was asked if our heifer was mistaken for a cow? Does this auction perform udder attachment surgery, I wondered, but since cows were bringing $0.34 and our heifer brought $0.32 that certainly was not a possibility. Oh yes, and the old story, since our heifer was a Brown Swiss it brought much less, but all heifers brought $0.52 to $0.58 or so it was listed on the actual market report.

I am entitled to believe after much research into this accurate market report our heifer was somehow altered. It appears she had an udder attachment, grew feathers, and sprouted billy goat horns. At this writing the auction is upset, yes, now that the auction owner thinks about it our heifer was resold by the buyer as a cow to make more profit, the Pa. Department of Agriculture is annoyed that I want accurate reports, and I am trying to make some sense out of raising animals for two years and receiving chicken feed as payment.

I guess in a story there is always a moral: All that receive chicken feed should do some very serious squawking!

Pa. Farm Bureau To Meet

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.)—The 45th annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) will take place Nov. 13-15 at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center in Hershey.

The main business of the meeting will be the election of leaders and the setting policies on statewide issues affecting agriculture. The presentation of awards, information conferences and other activities will also highlight the three-day session.

Several hundred farm leaders, including 169 voting delegates, will gather to set the future course of the organization. Voting delegates will deliberate on about 150 proposed policy resolutions for the organization which were developed from grassroots input by members in county farm bureaus.

Policy resolutions will focus on issues such as tax reform, highway funding and milk safety requirements. Voting delegates will also be electing the organization's vice president and eight of the 16 district representatives on PFB's state board of directors.

Governor Tom Ridge will be the keynote speaker at the annual meeting's opening luncheon, Monday, Nov. 13. Ridge appeared at PFB's 1993 annual meeting as a participant in a "Meet The Candidates" debate for the office of Governor. PFB president Keith Eckel of Clarks Summit, Lackawanna County will present the President's Address to the organization at Tuesday's luncheon, Nov. 14.

Several annual awards will be presented during the convention. The "Distinguished Service To Agriculture Award" will be presented to a person or persons who have made a significant contribution to the betterment of Pennsylvania agriculture. The top county in farm bureau program achievements will receive the "All Star Award." In addition, the "Outstanding Young Farmer Award" will be presented to one of three finalists in the competition which recognizes outstanding business accomplishments and leadership exhibited before age 30.

Other activities during the annual meeting include a discussion meet contest sponsored by PFB's young farmers and ranchers committee.

Pa. State Grange Holds Annual Convention

industry."

He said that the Grange also is appreciated for its "contribution to the economic success of rural Pennsylvania."

Brosius said one goal in the attempt to broaden agricultural markets is to increase exports and offer opportunities to Pennsylvania farmers to enter the international market by expanding markets for value-added products.

To meet that goal, Brosius formally announced the creation of an "International Day" to be part of the state Farm Show (Jan. 6-11).

According to the secretary, foreign ambassadors and trade representatives are being invited to the Farm Show to get a feel for the best that Pennsylvania agriculture has to offer.

"We will work hard to match buyers with sellers, to show the variety of products available from the Keystone state, and to set the stage for future business.

"And if we sustain the profitability of agriculture — increase marketing opportunities for our farmers — then rural communities around the state will ultimately benefit."

As far as water use regulations, for several years the Susquehanna River Basin Commission — a federal-state compact with authority over the entire flows of the Susquehanna Basin — has been trying to decide how to set water-consumption regulations and establish a system to avoid severe water shortages and overuse by any one entity.

Earlier this year, the SRBC had redesigned and condensed most of its regulations into a comprehensive, rational package, except for the issue of consumptive use and a fee structure. That work is ongoing.

The Grange would like to see a policy that calls for the creation of a government-funded reservoir storage of make-up water to satisfy the SRBC consumptive use regulations for agriculture.

Cosumptive use is that use which causes inordinate and evaporation and loss of water from basin. The SRBC charges a fee or requires those consuming water to create water storage so that the flows of the river are not overly taxed during periods of low flow, of which the state experienced many during the past decade.

"The Grange is working with other agricultural groups and the SRBC for regulations that satisfy all parties," Shambaugh said, "and the Grange delegate body believes a reservoir is a viable solution that would be equitable for everyone."

Among those presented with awards during the convention was Betty Master, of the Scrubgrass Grange No.1705, in Venango County. Master was honored at the 1995-96 Granger of the Year.

The award is the highest honor bestowed upon a member for their service to the Grange and other organizations.

In addition to serving as treasurer of the Venango County Pomona Grange, lecturer of her local Grange, and a past member of the state Grange Lecturer Department from 1986-94, she has held the office of Flora and served on the county 5th Degree team.

She is also involved in her church, the Scrubgrass Homemakers, serves as director of the Venango County Fair Board, is a member of the Bair/Simcox Women's Association, the Demeter Club, the Clintonville Firemen's Women's Auxiliary, and has been a 4-H leader for 20 years.

"Betty artfully coordinates many of the community activities to include several organizations working for one common goal. It's not uncommon to find her volunteering seven days a week. She is truly the backbone of our Grange," said Glenn Gross, president of the Scrubgrass Grange.

Master is also known for her work with a local Applefest, for which 300 apple pies and 200 apple cakes are made from scratch in her kitchen.

"It's really not work," Master said abou the effort which she has been doing for eight years. "It has become a community event that people look forward to every year."

Others honored during the convention include Amy Noble, of Mercer County Pomona Grange No.25, who was selected Pomona Youth Chairperson of the Year.

Annette Kramer and Cindy Liebensperger, of Pioneer Grange No.1777, in Berks County, were honored as Subordinate Youth Chairpersons of the Year, making it the second year in a row that the subordinate award was won by someone from Pioneer Grange.

Deb Campbell, director of the junior programs for the State Grange recognized members for outstanding service.

Among them were four Super Junior Grange winners. Jesica Blair, of Perry Valley Junior Grange No.507; Adam Britcher, of Community Junior Grange No.479; Denise Zug, of Walker Junior Grange No.416; and Ron Strong, of Plum Creek Valley Junior Grange No.541.

In other business, Carol Jamison, of Jefferson Grange No.1373, in Butler County, won the annual talent contest, being named best of show from a field performing in front of 600 Grangers.

Jamison sand "In Heaven's Eyes" to win the contest and is to compete in the national talent contest this weekend in Harrisburg.

Brosius said that agriculture is the state's number one industry — employing one in five residents and contributing 16 percent, or $40 billion, of the gross state annual product.

"The sale of farm commodities fuels the economic engine of rural Pennsylvania, and the economic success of rural Pennsylvania fuels the economic success of the entire commonwealth.

"Despite our importance to the state, you know that we in agriculture and rural Pennsylvania have many challenges facing us."

As far as policies adopted, Brenda Shambaugh, legislative director for the State Grange, said, As a grass-roots organization, the policies determined here will influence our legislative efforts on Capitol Hill as we work on legislation that will affect agriculture and rural Pennsylvania.

"These issues are of greatest concern to our membership and the Pennsylvania State Grange will see that these policies are addressed at the state and federal level."

Some of the key policies adopted involve the controversial 1995 Farm Bill, the state's program that creates Agricultural Security Areas, the U.S. Delaney Clause which affects testing of residue on foods products (zero tolerance), building code regulations, and water use regulations.

According to Shambaugh, the main objective of the Grange, with respect to the Farm Bill, is to make agriculture more profitable and help keep families on their farms.

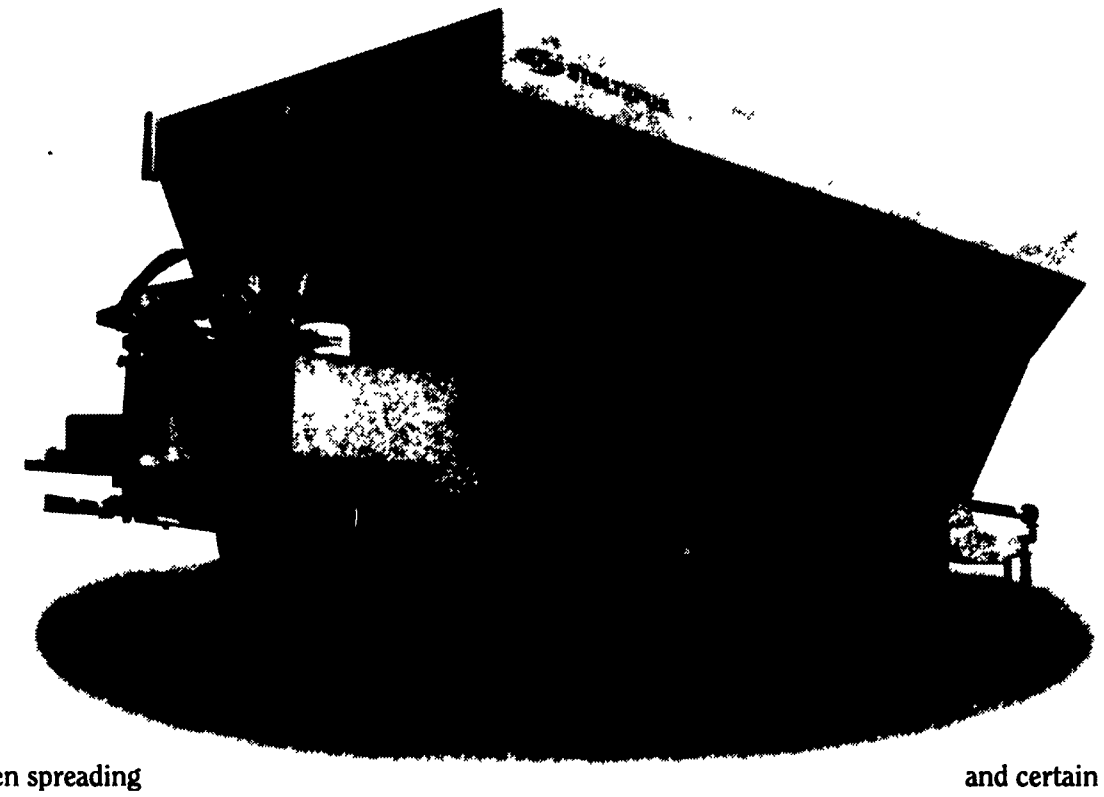
"Farmers are unduly taxed and we want a Farm Bill that allows farmers to receive an adequate price for their products, and one that allows farmers to stay in business and provide food and fiber for our nation and the world."

The policy passed at the convention was aimed primarily at dairy provisions.

The key provisions were that the Farm Bill:

- repeal the dairy assessment (part of the budget reconciliation) farmers pay on every hundred pounds (cwt) of milk they sell;
- remove butter and milk powder from the support price;
- support full funding for exports to the limits allowed under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade;
- establish an export agency;
- expand or modify federal milk marketing orders through a hearing process with the provision that failed amendments do not cause the failure of the order;
- continue Class II prices based on Class III price and 30 cents per cwt;
- use multiple component pricing;
- create a national security fund to protect against processor bankruptcy as long as stronger state programs are not pre-empted;
- be created so as to defeat possible legislated formation of a single federal order and pooling of Class I differentials.

Sometimes You Need A Spreader Built Like A Tank.



When spreading stockpiled lime, for example. The Stoltzfus Wet Lime Spreader is likely the most powerful spreader of its kind on the market today. You see, we've been building them since 1945, and farmers are still using Stoltzfus Wet Lime Spreaders they've had for 20, even 30 years. Our special drag chain is 4 times stronger than stainless steel, and handles frozen and heavy stockpiled lime with ease. Plus, for spreading compost, composted sludge, poultry litter and certain fertilizers, the WLS is without equal for sheer volume spreading. We call that performance. You'll call it terrific.

We hope you compare a Stoltzfus WLS with other spreaders. It makes us look even better. Price? Sure we may be a little more. But when you end up replacing cheaper units in a few short years, what have you saved? Stoltzfus quality always pays foritself many times over.

Just how tough is a Stoltzfus WLS? Plenty tough. Call today. We'll tell you where to find the dealer nearest you, and send you free literature to inspect.

Housing Expo Examines Stall, Building Design

Wisconsin Vet: Cow Comfort Translates Into Improved Production

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Inadequate cow comfort comprises one quarter of all problems a dairy veterinarian encounters as limiting factors in herd performance.

And making the cow more comfortable can go a long way toward increasing productivity by improving overall herd health, according to Dr. Gordon Jones, DVM, Oconto Falls, Wis.

Jones spoke to about 125 livestock managers on Wednesday morning at the annual Animal Housing Expo at the Lebanon Fairgrounds.

The Wisconsin veterinarian spoke to producers about the important "covenant" that needs to be kept with cow care, a covenant that is "sacred to me."

Jones held up a little toy cow to those who attended as he spoke about his wide-ranging expertise in cow care.

"I brought the cow with me to remind you who speaks for the cow," said Jones. "She can't speak for herself. You and I have to speak for her."

Jones called the cow, of which there are more than a billion on this planet, the most dominant ruminant.

In his practice, Jones said that he takes care of nearly 300 dairy clients, which make up about 95 percent of his business. He began his practice in 1977.

Many times, according to Jones, farmers get caught up in some of the headaches of the dairy business and "don't look up from the fog to see what the neighboring county's done or the neighboring state or what they're doing across the country, or even around the world." They don't take enough of a hard, long look at what they're doing to improve milking and overall performance.

While helping the farmer with herd health, Jones said it is important to keep the individual goals of the producer in mind. But "we've got to come up with a way to measure cow comfort," he said.

To raise production, the idea is to "coax" the cow into eating more. Each pound of dry matter intake (DMI) translates into nearly three pounds of milk produced for a typical cow. For every seven cents invested in DMI, the returns range from 35 cents to 42 cents in milk from a cow, depending on genetics and other factors.

If you can get the cow to eat one more bite, production rises, increasing profitability. If you can increase the dry mattter intake one more bite, she'll milk more and it can be more profitable for the dairy farmer, according to Jones.

"I've never been on a dairy in the United States where I didn't coax the cow into eating one more bite, I'd raise performance and increase profitability without increasing more expenses beyond the feed," said Jones.

The limiting factor in improving nutrition is, in many cases, cow comfort.

Jones said that that, according to recent studies conducted in France, the blood flow to the udder of the cow, when she's standing, is 3.74 liters per minute. When she's lying down, blood flow is 5.56 liters per minute. That's an increase of 49.67 percent for a cow that's lying down. "That's dramatic," said Jones.

The key is to "lie the cow down as quickly as you can," said Jones. Increasing blood flow with a cow at full rumen can send 90 gallons of blood per hour through the udder.

"Your job as dairy men and women is to lie cows down as fast as possible," said Jones.

Cows will often "tell you when they're uncomfortable," said Jones, because they'll be "standing and chewing their cud.

"Something's wrong with where they want to lie down. If you see cows standing around chewing their cud, it's a bad time."

Evidence of a comfort problem is bad hocks on the cow's legs. That tells a veterinarian that there is something wrong with the stall. The swollen hock is caused by the impact against a hard surface, either lying down, standing up, or grinding against the surface.

Jones showed examples of cows that had bruised hocks as a result of bumping against too hard a surface in their stalls.

For producers using tiestalls, often there is not adequate space in the stalls on the side for the cows and in the length of the stall to properly lie down or for the cows to get up. He told the producers that a tiestall platform needs to be at least 4 feet wide by 6 feet long to provide adequate room.

Jones indicated that in one case, research showed that a 5-7 pound milk increase was possible with cows that are given more room to lie down in.

Also, freestalls completed without obstructions, including posts and curbs, may be the best answer for cow comfort. "I now think of the best barns, my best performance barns, are freestalls, not tiestalls," he said.

Jones said that lying down cows make more milk. And lying cows lie down better when there's more bedding.

Jones provided data from research in New York that indicated the most productive and profitable herds are those that spend more money on bedding. And the best bedding is sand.

"I think the gold standard for cows, be they in tiestalls or in freestalls, is sand," Jones said. "Sand is the perfect bedding."

Sand is ideal because of its cushioning and its moisture absorption.

According to a display at the expo featuring Penn State recommendations, if using sand, a minimum 4-inch to 6-inch layer in the stall is necessary (12 inches or more is preferred). The sand must be free of stones and rocks and have minimum clay and organic material. Typical usage ranges from 20-80 pounds per stall per day.

Sand can be stored in a pile near exhaust fans to keep it dry. Sand dries out quickly when spread.

The manger should be prepared so that it is four inches higher than the cow's front feet. The manger should be smooth. Also, the manger should be white because cows shy away from putting their head into a dark cavity.

Water pressure to a trough should be adequate. Because of the problems of "boss cows," more than one water site should be provided so that all cows can receive an adequate supply.

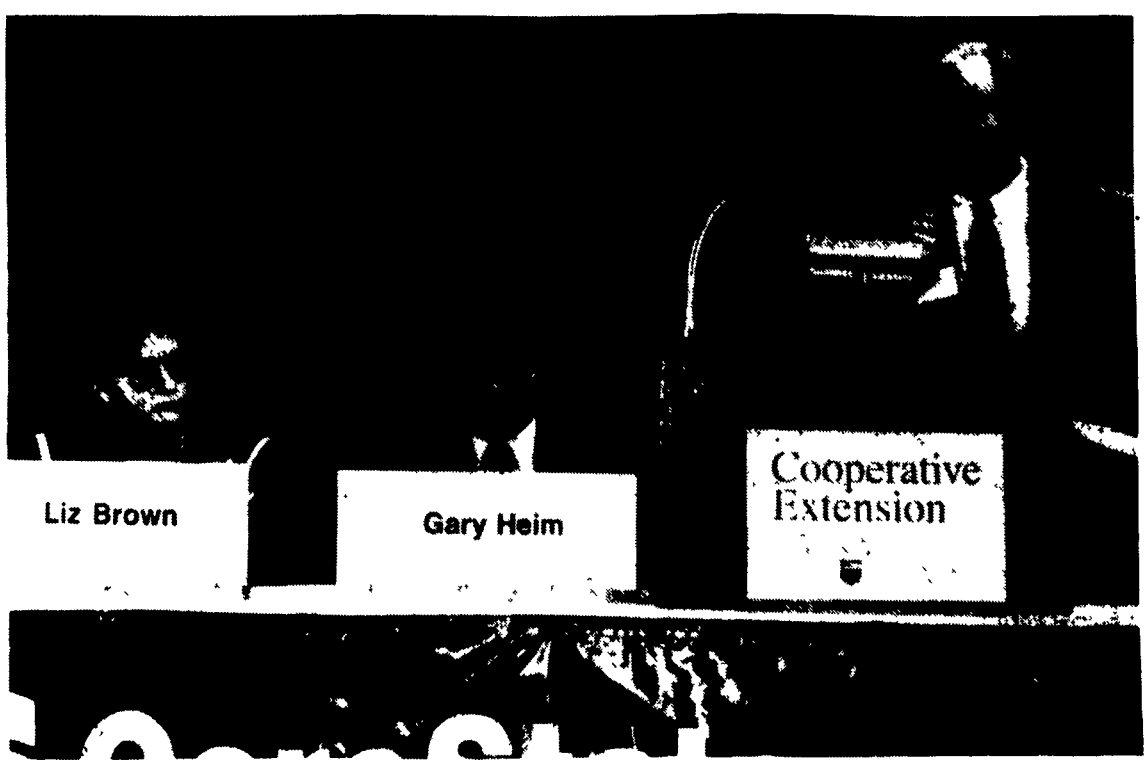
Jones told the producers that good ventilation is also important. Basket fans, he said, are not ventilation — they simply take all the bad air that accumulates in the barn and spread it everywhere. Some type of natural or tunnel ventilation is needed.

Jones said that veterinarians have been used to looking at something that is abnormal for so long that "we start thinking abnormal is normal." Jones said that he started to believe that a calf couldn't be born without assistance, even though only three percent of births are assisted.

According to Jones, it's important for producers to learn to "look up from the fog" of the daily work to see what they can do to improve the farm as a business.

Dr. Gordon Jones, Wisconsin veterinarian, spoke to producers about the important "covenant" that needs to be kept with cow care, a covenant that is "sacred to me," he said. Jones held up a little toy cow to those who attended as he spoke about his wide-ranging expertise in cow care.

Tim Royer, president of Timber Tech Engineering, Womelsdorf, showed a series of slides from the infamous winter of 1994. In many cases, snow load damage caused millions of dollars worth of damage to wood buildings with wide, clear-span trusses without proper bracing.



Gary Heim, attorney with Mette, Evans and Woodside, center, and Liz Brown, tax consultant and preparer, left, spoke about some of the strategies farm businesses can use to transfer assets and the business enterprise to succeeding family members. Moderator is John J. Mattillo, agrifinance officer, CoreStates Bank, right.

Avoiding Building Failures

"It really boils down to bracing — proper truss bracing," said Tim Royer, president of Timber Tech Engineering, Womelsdorf, at the Expo.

Royer showed a series of slides from the infamous winter of 1994.

Snow load damage caused millions of dollars worth of damage to wood buildings that had wide, clear-span trusses without proper bracing.

"Our agricultural buildings keep getting wider and longer and bigger to do more and at a better price per square foot," said Royer. "You end up just scraping all the fat out, and there's nothing but lean left in our building designs. The important thing is that you don't scrape out what should stay in, in terms of structural integrity."

The design employs "a lot lighter construction than we had 200 years ago." In the past, barn buildings with bank construction were made with big timber and (compared to today's economy) expensive materials. Now, the buildings are "stick-built" designs. The buildings use two-by-fours or two-by-sixes using dimensional wood-metal plate trusses.

The key element to structural integrity is to examine the load and follow that load path through the structure and into the properly built foundation below.

In one example, heavy snows in 1994, some measuring five to six feet, caused a riding arena using 70-foot clear span wood trusses to collapse. The entire side of the roof caved in, leaving tons of snow and rubble on the floor of the building.

In other examples, side-sway buckling was caused by the enormous snow load.

"I spend a lot of time on truss bracing, primarly because that is the number one evil we found in the winter of 1994," said Royer.

In every case, there was inadequate bracing for the snow loads.

The load is going to find the weakest link. And whatever that weakest link is, that's where the failure is going to start and possibly take the rest of the building down, according to Royer.

In another example, Royer showed that inadquate design of the bracing caused the roof of a building under construction to bow considerably. A rainstorm finally

New York Dairy Finds Careful Hybrid Selection Boosts Milk Production At No Extra Cost

What's it worth to plant corn hybrids scientifically screened for their feeding qualities?

Enough to cover the cost of all crop inputs for a year, according to the owners of a 1,000-cow New York dairy.

"We figure the hybrids we plant for corn silage increase milk production by 4 lbs. or more per day," says Weir Stewart (left in photo), a partner at Odyssey Farm near Copake Falls, N.Y. "In our operation, that's enough to cover the entire cost of fertilizer, seed and planting for one year.

"We discovered what differences in corn-silage feeding quality could mean to our bottom line in 1991," continues Stewart. "That's when we learned that Cargill Hybrid Seeds had done considerable research to screen hybrids for feeding quality. So we tried some.

"There was a definite drop in production when we ran out of the silage from the Cargill hybrids and began feeding other silage. We also discovered that we could plant hybrids that were highly digestible and also yielded excellent tonnage per acre.

"We've learned that a quality forage program is extremely important to maximize milk production," says Stewart. "It's very difficult to overcome poor forage quality, even when you add the expense of a good supplementation program."

Since 1987, many dairy and beef producers who planted Cargill hybrids have related similar experiences to those at Odyssey Farm. That's the year Cargill Hybrid Seeds began selecting and screening hybrids through an extensive evaluation program for corn silage.

Selected for Profit Potential

Hybrids are selected on the basis of their potential to increase the profitability of livestock operations by enhancing forage yield, reducing feed supplement costs and improving animal performance. Hybrid offerings cover 80- to 120-day maturities.

The research shows repeatable differences in important quality characteristics such as whole plant digestibility, neutral detergent fiber, fiber digestibility, non-fiber carbohydrates and crude protein.

Odyssey Farm managers found the research especially important to their operation since they prefer feeding rations with higher amounts of corn silage than haylage. Corn silage is easier to manage from both a crop-production and feeding standpoint, they say.

"It's difficult to harvest alfalfa with consistently high feed value in an operation this large," says partner Bob Kimmel (right in photo). "Alfalfa must be cut and harvested several times a year

and it can be difficult to harvest at the best time for maximum quality. Corn silage needs to be harvested only once during the growing season so total labor and equipment costs are less. The time available to harvest quality corn silage is much wider than the time available to harvest haylage.

"Good-quality forage is the basic building block of any ration," he adds. "I've been involved in the dairy business for more than 25 years, and I've learned that cows are more healthy and give more milk when they eat more. Those that are eating the most dry matter are usually the healthiest. A highly digestible ration can affect milk production, improve health and improve breed-back and conception rates."

Lancaster Youth To Again Receive Holstein Calf

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

QYARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — A nice-looking September calf from Mark Welk's original 4-H cow family will be presented to a youth winner at the Lancaster County Holstein Banquet held Tuesday, Nov. 21. For the past several years, a calf has been donated to an intermediate youth in the association who has the top record book score. The calf donation is a combined effort between the association and a Holstein breeder to encourage young people in the youth program.

The Astro-Jet calf this year has a deep pedigree with outstanding type, fat, and protein. The dam, Welk-Shade Ultimate Dana, weighs over a ton, is 87 points with records over 20,000m and now milking 110 pounds per day. The next dam is VG-88 with almost 24,000m; the 3rd dam is VG-88 with 28,090m 1,151f 922p; and the 4th dam is Mark's original 4-H animal that had records over 28,000, 1,000f and 180,000m lifetime.

Starting time for the roast beef banquet is 7 p.m. at the Hoffman Building in the fair grounds. Entertainment, fun, and fellowship, along with state and local association reports will be part of the evening's program.

Tickets for adults are $10.00; children ages 4 to 10 are $4. Tickets may be ordered by calling Nelson Wenger (717-665-7233); Daryl Mills (717-464-7202), or Donna Coleman (717-687-6844).

Governor Lifts Drought Restrictions On All But Three Counties

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Gov. Tom Ridge on Thursday ended drought restrictions for 29 of the 32 counties that had been placed under mandatory restrictions since mid-September.

The governor's lifting of the restrictions was done based upon the recommendation of the Governor's Drought Task Force, which met Wednesday.

According to Besty Hancock, press secretary for Lt. Gov. Mark Schweiker, who heads the task force, the recommendation was made that the governor lift restrictions in all but three counties which had been placed under state restrictions.

Hancock said the three counties that remain under drought restrictions "due to lingering ground water deficiencies" are Chester, Monroe, and Potter.

Although not part of an official statement, it is nevertheless true that recovery of groundwater levels from October rains does not ensure continued stability of those levels through the winter — normally the annual period of lowest flows other than late summer, and typically the annual period of lowest groundwater recharge.

Should the ground freeze soon, or before additional precipitation can soak into the ground to maintain or raise groundwater levels, those groundwater gains made during the past month and a half could be quickly lost.

The governor's authority is limited to the political boundaries which define the state, and does not extend over the natural watershed boundaries of the major river drainages in the state.

On the other hand, the Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) and the Delaware River Basin Commission (DRBC) — two separate federal-state watershed authorities — have oversight authority over water uses within the boundaries of those rivers' watersheds.

While the governor's lifting of the restrictions is in place, the SRBC has had a basin-wide drought warning in effect since Sept. 14.

That warning carried a number of voluntary restrictions and urged people to take care to use only that water necessary.

According to Richard Cairo, spokesman for the SRBC, given the amount of rain and the fact that the governor has lifted mandatory restrictions, it is expected that the commission will lift its warning when it meets in Harrisburg on Nov. 16.

The commission is set to meet at 9 a.m., in Rm. 60 East Wing, of the state Capitol.

The SRBC is a state-federal compact (New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland) that has oversight authority over the flows over the river, including surface and groundwaters within the basin.

The commission, comprised of the respective heads or designees of each state's environmental agency and the head of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, meets on a regular basis at various locations within the basin. Though the commission's headquarters is located along Front Street in Harrisburg, the commission doesn't meet in Harrisburg any more frequently than in other states.

Several agenda items for action have been listed by the commission, including a review of whether or not to continue a basin-wide drought warning.

Though not connected with the SRBC, reports over the first three weeks of October from the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP formerly the DER) had stated that, though rain had been in excess of norms for October, groundwater levels had been still falling or were still very low.

As of Nov. 3, according to the DEP's weekly publication, Environmental Protection and Natural Resources UPDATE, "Initial data for October shows above average rainfall in all 67 counties."

However, it also stated that, "Even with these large accumulations, flooding was not significant due in part to the long dry period. Initial rains seemed tohave filled soil voids, limestone areas and abandoned mine workings and stipping cuts, reducing runoff and easing flood potential.

"Streamflows also rebounded during October as the monthly mean flows are generally at or better than the 50th percentile. This means that flows for October have been in worse condition less than half of the period of record."

MMI Announces Annual Meeting In Pittsburgh

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI), a dairy cooperative with 9,000 farm families in 11 states, will hold its annual meeting in Pittsburgh, on Nov. 20 and 21.

Some 500 farmer delegates, officers, and other farm leaders are expected to attend, including Charles Brosius, Pennsylvania's secretary of agriculture.

The annual meeting is a first both for the location, with Pennsylvania being central to MMI's operating area, and for the newly combined dairy cooperative, now the largest in the region and third in the country.

The former Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative merged with MMI earlier this year, creating a $1 billion dairy food company marketing 824 million gallons of milk annually. While Eastern Milk served farmers in seven states, the majority were located in Pennsylvania and New York. Eastern's former headquarters building in Syracuse, NY is now the site of MMI's Eastern Region office.

With a theme of "Changing the Future Together," the two-day meeting will take place in Pittsburgh's Double Tree Hotel. Farmer delegates will attend an Information Fair on Monday afternoon, Nov. 20, as well as workshops on the impact of federal farm legislation, the industry's approach to consumer marketing, and the development of value-added products.

A 5 p.m. reception will showcase products made with MMI milk, including a variety of cheeses, butter, yogurt, ice cream, baby formula, and various other food products.

The annual banquet will follow at 6:30 p.m. Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius is to be the guest speaker. Don Schriver, MMI's executive vice president and CEO, will give a short presentation on value-added product opportunities.

The annual business meeting on Tuesday morning will feature:

•Reports by officers and management, including Ohio farmer Herman Brubaker, chair and president of the board.

•A panel discussion by senior staff, including Don Schriver, executive vice president and CEO; Merle Koppenhafer, chief financial officer and director of finance and administration; Rod Carlson, director of member service and marketing; Dave Hoffman, director of manufacturing; Bill Perry, director of member and governmental affairs, and Dave Steifer, director of business development.

•A discussion of new product development.

Last September, MMI members received extra milk checks totalling $2.2 million based on the co-op's performance during the 1994-95 fiscal year.

ADC Gears Up For Annual Meeting

SOUTHAMPTON, Pa.—Atlantic Dairy Cooperative is gearing up for its 1995 annual meeting, which will be held Nov. 16-17 at the Lancaster Host Resort and Conference Center in Lancaster.

The theme of the 78th annual meeting, "Preserving Tradition, Pursuing Innovation," illustrates Atlantic's traditional role in marketing milk for dairy farmers. It also reflects the cooperative's new approaches to doing business in the 1990s.

During the 1995 fiscal year, Atlantic marketed a total of 4.5 billion pounds of milk, of which 3.8 billion pounds was produced by the cooperative's members. The net margin stood at $4.3 million, the equivalent of 11 cents per hundredweight.

The annual meeting will begin on Thursday, Nov. 16, at 9:45 a.m. with reports by Atlantic's officers and staff. At this time, a complete financial report will be presented by Michael A. John, chief financial officer.

Rober M. Dever, chief executive officer, will present his report during the afternoon session, which begins at 1:20 p.m. Following Dever's report, James C. Barr, chief executive officer, and James P. (Tom) Camerlo, president, of the National Milk Producers Federation will present an update on dairy legislation.

The annual banquet will begin Thursday night at 6:15 p.m. in the Showroom. Robert D. Sears, vice president of member relations at Agway Inc., will serve as master of ceremonies. The guest speaker will be Dr. Charles V. Petty, a family humorist.

The meeting will resume on Friday morning, Nov. 17, at 7 a.m. with the Young Cooperators Breakfast Program. At this time, the 1995 Young Cooperator winners will be recognized and the 1995 Agricultural Communicator Award will be presented. Dr. Kenneth Markley will present a motivational message.

Following the breakfast, at 9 a.m., the delegate session will begin with action on the 1995 resolutions.

A spouse program is planned in conjunction with the meeting. Participants on Thursday can choose between a trip to the Dutch Apple Dinner Theater for a showing of "It's a Wonderful Life," or a tour of Lancaster County attractions. The program on Friday will include presentations by Diane Kelly, R.D., on "Healthy Cooking with Dairy Products," and Betsy Conte on "Cure Your Closet Chaos."

For further information about the meeting and/or a registration form, please contact Jean Palumbo, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, at (215) 322-0200.

"4672 passed the heat stress test again this year."

Wilbur B.
"Brownie" Pierce
Perryman, MD

"Our area is notorious for hot dry spells, and 4672 has stood the stress, year after year. It holds up well under the heat, and that's one of the reasons we continue to use it. We especially like the stalk and root strength — no green snap.

"In addition, we can always market it without dockage — the test weight and grain quality always produces an excellent sample."

Producing big yields in a variety of environments is the clear strength of 4672. It has superior stalk quality, and excellent stress tolerance. A 118-day hybrid, it does well in light, medium or heavy soils.

It's clear that 4672 and all our other hybrids will protect your seed investment under even the most challenging conditions. Call Hoffman Seeds at 1-800-776-7929 for details.

Ag Dept., PMMB Reach Agreement On 1995 Farm Bill

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Agriculture Department and the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) announced they have reached agreement on key dairy proposals for the federal 1995 Farm Bill.

In an unprecedented joint statement, Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius and Leon H. Wilkinson, PMMB chairman, said they have agreed upon several major points which they will seek to have included in the farm bill now being considered in the U.S. Congress.

"This is a significant sign of solidarity in Pennsylvania, and the proposals which we are putting forward offer a common-sense approach to milk marketing," Brosius said.

"Implementation of these suggestions will improve income for Pennsylvania dairy farmers while being sensitive to serious budget restraints at the federal level.

"The dairy industry represents 40 percent of the agricultural economy in Pennsylvania. We must continue to work to influence the outcome of the new dairy legislation."

Wilkinson said that the PMMB recognizes the importance of working together with the Agriculture Department in providing input for the 1995 Farm Bill.

The PMMB is an independent entity created to regulate the milk industry. The board is charged with licensing milk haulers and handlers, establishing over-order prices, and operating a producer security fund, among other duties.

Brosius said that the current federal assessment of $0.1125 per hundred weight on dairy producers intended to reduce the federal deficit has been a burden and should be eliminated. The dollars saved by that step could be used more effectively to help dairymen increase their profitability.

The department and PMMB said they support full federal funding of all dairy export programs, including funding of the Dairy Export Incentive Program and other promotional programs designed to increase dairy exports. Funding for expanded export programs can be generated from efficiencies built into the bill, and from consolidation of federal market orders.

Consolidating existing federal market orders will eliminate disparity in pricing structures, pooling requirements and classification. It also will allow for the preservation of the best characteristics of each order while eliminating some of the confusion and instability of the present system. A recognition of regional differences would benefit the state's dairy industry.

Both state agencies support the development of Class I price differentials based on regional marketing characteristics to replace the current system of basing differentials on the distance from Eau Claire, Wis. Regional price development will more accurately reflect market conditions.

Brosius and Wilkinson also support replacement of the Minnesota-Wisconsin pricing scheme. They said they believe that a Class III price developed according to current prices being paid for manufactured products more accurately reflects market conditions.

knocked it down.

Other causes may be inadequate structural connections — the load will follow the load path to the ground and find the weakest link and break there.

Royer said that when following truss bracing design, he refers to the standard, HIB-91, available from the Truss Plate Institute. To receive a copy, contact the Institute at 583 D'Onofrio Dr., Suite 200, Madison, WI 53719, (608) 833-5900.

Royer emphasized the importance of proper storage of trusses (either completely upright or completely flat on a level, solid surface) and proper handling of trusses (with the use of temporary bracing as the construction is taking place). Temporary bracing helps to avoid wind damage on the permanent truss structure. Permanent bracing, the builder's responsibility, should be a part of the final building design.

Permanent bracing is used on the top chord, the bottom chord (ceiling), and webbing. A combination of diagonal and lateral bracing is used on the top and bottom chords. A series of X-bracing is used in the webs.

In the HIB-91 standard, taken into account is the wind load (from 70 mph in southeast Pennsylvania and inland) and up to 110 mph near the shorelines. Snow load ranges from 25-30 pounds per square foot in this area, and higher when farther inland.

Often, township building codes for farm buildings don't require adequate additional truss bracing. But building codes may be necessary to ensure against possible collapse from wind and storm loads.

In the final design, factors such as unbalanced loading (from drifting snow) need to be taken into account on truss design. Also, load path must be complete all the way to the properly designed footing.

Those who want to put up a building should follow common sense, according to Royer. "With a little bit of experience and common sense, you can pretty much get a feel for a building that is properly designed," he said.

Continuing Family Business

Gary Heim, attorney with Mette, Evans and Woodside, and Liz Brown, tax consultant and preparer, spoke about some of the strategies farm businesses can use to transfer assets and the business enterprise to succeeding family members.

One of the ways that estate transfers often prove troubling, according to Brown, is the lack of communication between farm family members. Communication is necessary and important, according to Brown.

Parents need to lay the groundwork for succession early on, years in advance, if only to save on paying excess taxes.

Also, the successors often want to start taking over the business by the time they reach 40, according to Heim. These issues have to be faced. And taking over a business can be a gradual process, often over a 20-year period.

Heim and Brown reviewed some processes by which farm owners could experience tax savings by starting the plan of succession when they believe the time is right.

growing turtle and carp population, Knill said.

The delegation's last stop was Thailand, a country that competes with the U.S. in exporting goods to China.

Thailand has a year-round growing season, Knill said. "We saw corn being harvested and corn less than a foot high just a half mile down the road," he said. Corn there is harvested and dried on large cement areas. The grain is turned hourly using a spike-tooth harrow that has a flat blade, Knill said. "They claim it will dry down a percentage point an hour using just the sun and that cement" pad.

In Thailand, the delegation visited a modern day poultry operation with equipment similar to what is used in the U.S. except for one thing: the entire building was made of bamboo with a thatched roof overhead, Knill said.

Knill also spoke briefly about his trip to South America with the AFBF earlier this year. The delegation visited Argentina first and were amazed to see how beef cattle are raised there.

"They raise their cattle on grass alone. At one ranch, we saw 750 550- to 800-pound feeder cattle being fed on 12 acres," he said. The acres have been partitioned and the cattle are moved to a new patch every 24 to 36 hours. "When they leave a patch it looks like this linoleum floor and four days later it's very green and the grass is starting to come back."

He said Argentinean farmers keep land in pasture five or six years and then put it into a corn, soybean and wheat rotation for three years before putting it back in pasture. The delegation saw soybeans that grew waist high and visited a Cargill grain storage and export center.

Knill said storage and infrastructure are big problems for Argentinean grain growers. "There is virtually no on-farm storage," he said. "And a lot of trucks are on the road two days just to get grain unloaded." Road conditions are also poor, complicating things even further.

A stop in Chile brought the delegation to a nation that has almost no worry about the fungus and mildew that can do in American grain, fiber and vegetable crops.

Chile gets 60 inches of rain annually — most of it falling in the month before the growing season and the month after, Knill said. The growing season itself is hot and dry — which keeps many fungus and mildews from developing. Corn that measures 250 bushels to the acre is common, he said.

Chile also produces much of the world's fruit and vegetables. The country is home to many seed production facilities, including one owned by the Burpee Seed Co., which the delegation was able to visit.

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.)—When Andy and Melissa Hipple moved here from Frederick County, Virginia, so Andy could teach ag mechanics at the Somerset Area High School, they had good reason to rejoice. For one thing, the Pennsylvania natives would be closer to both their families, and second, they expected an economic benefit from the relocation.

"If it tells you anything," Andy says with a reminiscent chuckle, "in the 10 months we lived in Virginia, I put 36,000 miles on my car."

His family home is 20 miles north of Williamsport in Lycoming County and hers, much further west in Armstrong County. Visiting home often was a must.

As one of five ag teachers in a big county-wide system, the Virginia job was Andy's first official teaching position. Earlier, his stint of student teaching was at Clearfield High School, Clearfield County. Working as a long-term substitute, Melissa was also employed, when the Somerset opportunity unexpectedly arose.

"There are only about 148 ag teacher positions in the state and they don't open very often," Andy said. But knowing his preference was Pennsylvania, Andy's friends and contacts were tracking all the possibilities.

In March 1993, news spread that Ed Shoemaker, Somerset's ag teacher, had died.

Andy took over the empty position that June. Summer recess was ideal for him as orientation time. He prepared for the task ahead, got acquainted with the area, and touched base with his record book students.

"It's difficult when you are stepping into a situation of a very well-liked person," he said. "I know what it's like to be a beginning ag teacher. My teacher in ninth grade was a beginner."

Persevering with confidence, Andy soon had friendships developing with students and FFA members.

"There are a lot of days (now) when kids talk to me about things not connected to ag—they just need someone to talk to. You become a friend," he said.

Meanwhile, his spouse like Andy, had earned her degree from Penn State, having majored in ag-science as opposed to his, ag-education. By studying tenaciously, she managed to complete college in three years instead of four. She and Andy graduated together.

"I wouldn't recommend it to anybody," she advises those considering demanding so much of themselves, but adds rosily, "I guess I did it for love."

Fortunately, student teaching took Andy out of sight for a few months during the last semester. Minus that distraction education got Melissa's full attention.

Their college romance spawned when he was a sophomore and she, a freshman. Having both attended (a year apart), the Governor's School of Agriculture, they discovered that between them was a lot of common ground.

Ag was his career choice. He liked what he learned in Montoursville High School, was very involved in vo-ag and FFA; with leadership, public speaking, parliamentary procedure and ag-salesmanship. Kids who struggled found that Andy's knack for remembering information and his willingness to help them, was very beneficial.

Too, the 200-acre Trout Run, Hipple dairy farm, among the county's biggest, and home to Jack and Patricia Hipple and their four offshoots, laid the interests of agriculture in Andy's early life.

Not so, Melissa. Her rural, non-farm background saw her dad—Gerald F. Crawford, Moreno, Calif., as a funeral director, her mother—Betsy Crawford, Freeport, working in a steel mill, and a grandfather who was a chemist, which hardly brought the Freeport Area High School honor student into close contact with agriculture. It did, however acquaint her with environmental issues that impact not only society in general, but also the farmer, literally, on every side.

Attending the Governor's School of Agriculture rather than of Science, was a lucky coincidence for Melissa, caused by a glitch with her application. The "very intensive" five-week school courses were animal science, plant science soils, leadership and an independent study project. She fell in love with agriculture.

Andy says, "The benefit is that you work with one professor the whole five weeks."

February 21, 991, probably is the most notable date in the lives of the Hipples.

Where to go on spring break was the problesm. Andy and Melissa argued whether to go to his home or hers.

"It was the biggest fight we ever had," admits Melissa.

Finally, Andy handed her a cute new teddy bear, which effectively infuriated the young woman further, as would a scarlet cape being waved before the eyes of an angry bull.

It wasn't just any stuffed bear, though, as Andy calmly pointed out by calling her attention to the baby bruin's neck ribbon and the diamond engagement ring attached there.

Of course, he was proposing marriage and she couldn't stay angry in those circumstances. So his folks got a telephone call while hers got the spring break visitors. In May 1992, both graduated from Penn State and married the following October.

Last June, Melissa, after being a caseworker for Somerset County Children and Youth Services, became the first female ag agent in the Somerset County office of the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service where a very active and very traditional 4-H program is thriving.

"We have a very high retention of leaders," said the new agent, "unlike some counties who have very high leader turnover. There is lots of parental involvement in Somerset County 4-H.

Andy and Melissa Hipple and son, Britton.

"A lot of hard work has gone into the 4-H program. If you look at the lenght of time the kids stay in 4-H, it's double the state average," Melissa reported, noting how many of the county's teens stick with the program.

"We have more teens in the program. I think it's more important to make an impact on a teenager than on an eight-year-old," she observed.

"I think any experience a child has with any organization is beneficial to a child. With so many broken homes and both parents working, kids need it. They need positive role models."

Melissa believes that her responsibilities—the 4-H interstate exchange program, county fashion revue, foods revue, demonstration contests, public speaking and square dancing, will go smoothly because a strong foundation was laid over the years by the now retired Bob Antram, a former interim director at Somerset.

As they chat, the Hipple's are kept busy monitoring the movements of their active little son, born Dec. 15, 1994, who seems determined to inflict his unwelcome attention upon the cats—Taylor and Sparky. When that fails, Britton remembers the glasses of iced tea and soda placed on the end table.

Advancing their education was always an accepted fact for the currently expectant, Melissa and her two teenaged sisters.

"I like being a mother," she says, "but I like to do things other than being a mother because I think it makes me a well-rounded person."

Kept busy by their jobs and attending various evening FFA and 4-H affairs, the spouses happily report that their workplaces are but five minutes from home and the babysitter located along Andy's route to school.

Family time is important which means they all go to work-related, evening engagements whenever possible.

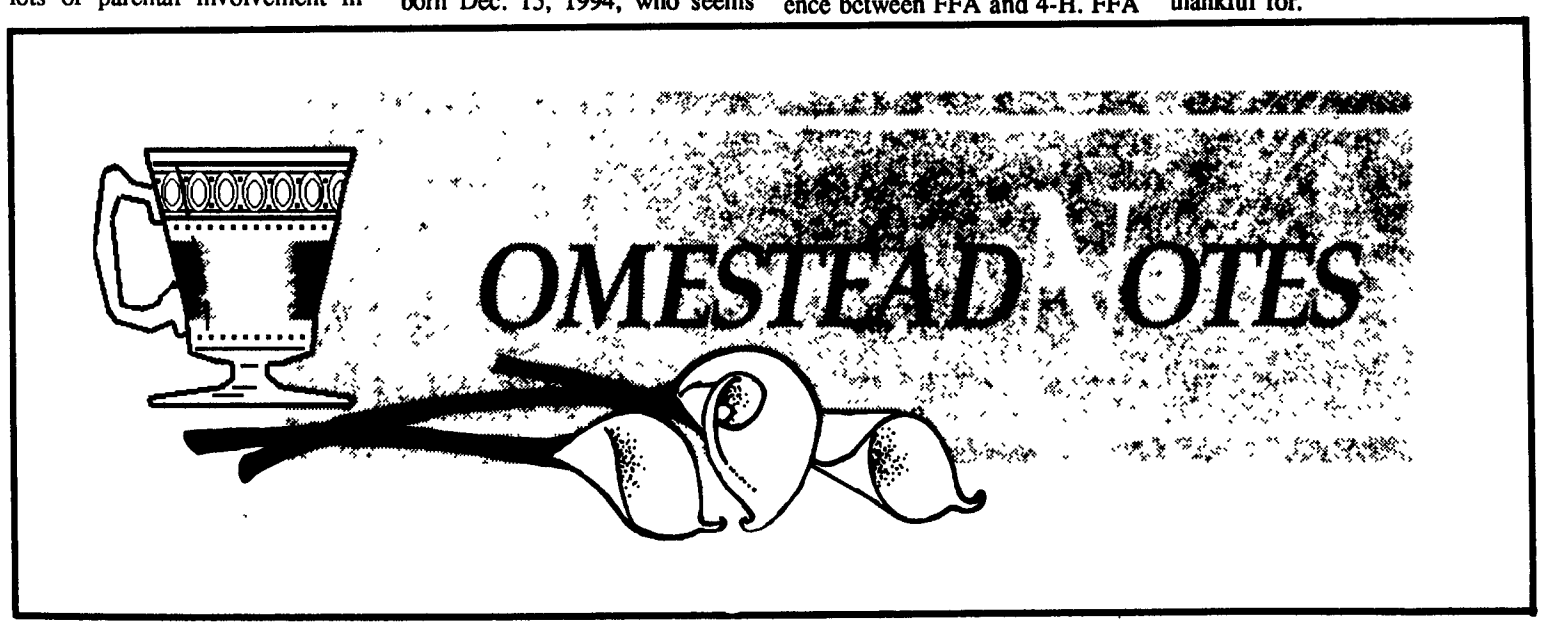
"In Somerset County," said Andy, "there's a distinct difference between FFA and 4-H. FFA is co-curricular, part of the school curriculum. If you are in ag, you should belong to the FFA."

Making good grades in high school was never a problem for either of them. Both had 3.9 grade point averages and stood amongst the top ten percent. His class had 180 students and hers, 169.

Traveling to his home, where his dad's parents also occupy the farm and his mother is disaster coordinator for the Lycoming County Chapter of the American Red Cross, is a four-hour jaunt from Somerset.

So by the time they arrive, if after work on Friday, everybody is ready for bed. And waiting to go until Saturday—well, that's too short of a weekend when you got-ta' turn around and come back on Sunday.

But still, the Hipple's aren't complaining. They try to adapt themselves to the circumstances and know they have much to be thankful for.



On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

More and more Americans, we hear, are into "home work."

Not homework, the stuff that teachers give students to do when they'd rather watch cartoons or play computer games or eat pizza. But "home work," performing one's method of earning a living by working out of one's home.

Farmers, homemakers and various self-employed professionals and craftspeople have worked out of our homes for years. But with the explosion of technology—computer, modems, faxes—home work has become a lot more commonplace for those who can tie-in electronically with their boss at some other location.

A survey I recently read about, done by a computing magazine, came up with home-work habits that interestingly parallel what we homeworkers on the farm have done for years. Though I wouldn't have guessed it, that poll found that about 80 percent of home-workers have their noses to the grindstone before nine in the morning.

Actually, by then, many farmers have already put in half of an eight-hour work day, especially when they begin by milking cows. And by nine at night, it's not unusual for lots of farmers to still be on the job—especially during peak planting and harvest times. Or when heifers rip across their back yards at 2 a.m., sows farrow all night long, or midnight finds them but 30 acres away from finishing soybean harvest and a snowstorm is bearing down from the northwest.

That poll also related the home-workers tend to "dress down." They needed a poll to figure that out? Who's going to put on a tie or pantyhose to work at home? That's what shorts, tee-shirts and bib overalls were invented for.

Occasionally, I yearn to put on a clean pair of jeans in the morning and be able to look at least somewhat presentable for a couple of hours. That will be the day that we put cows back into the barn before lunch and I tangle with the tail of one that managed to drap it through the smelliest corner of the exercise lot.

Or I'll give chase to a heifer and slip on what I wasn't paying attention to while keeping both eyes on where she was headed next. Or be drafted to help with a difficult calving.

Yet another revelation of that survey was that home workers may often goof off.

Hey, isn't that the point of working at home?

No, no, not really. But it's a distinct fringe benefit of giving up an office for bookkeeping at the kitchen table or trading off the social aspects of the workplace to share your day with cows, your office with a chair-stealing cat and a dog sprawled underfoot.

In fact, I abandoned this computer keyboard just a minute ago to prop the extension ladder to the maple tree and fill the bird feeder. It was either that or listen to the mob of bluejays screech all afternoon. Where else could I work and do that?

I've also been known to goof off picking flowers, feeding the fish in the pond, snuggling one of the new kittens at the barn or baking brownies. Or even steal away for a walk in the middle of the afternoon on a stunning, late-fall day.

Though the survey didn't cover renumeration, I'd betcha' that home work, overall, lags well behind the wages/salary generated by more tradition on-site jobs.

But at least no one has figured out how to tax a temporary escape from the computer to feed the birds. Yet.

Angels Gather At York County Convention

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

YORK (York Co.) — "Angels are here all the time but we're too busy to see them because we are looking in the wrong places," Carolyn Neal said at the annual York County Convention of Farm Women held at Wisehaven Hall on November 2.

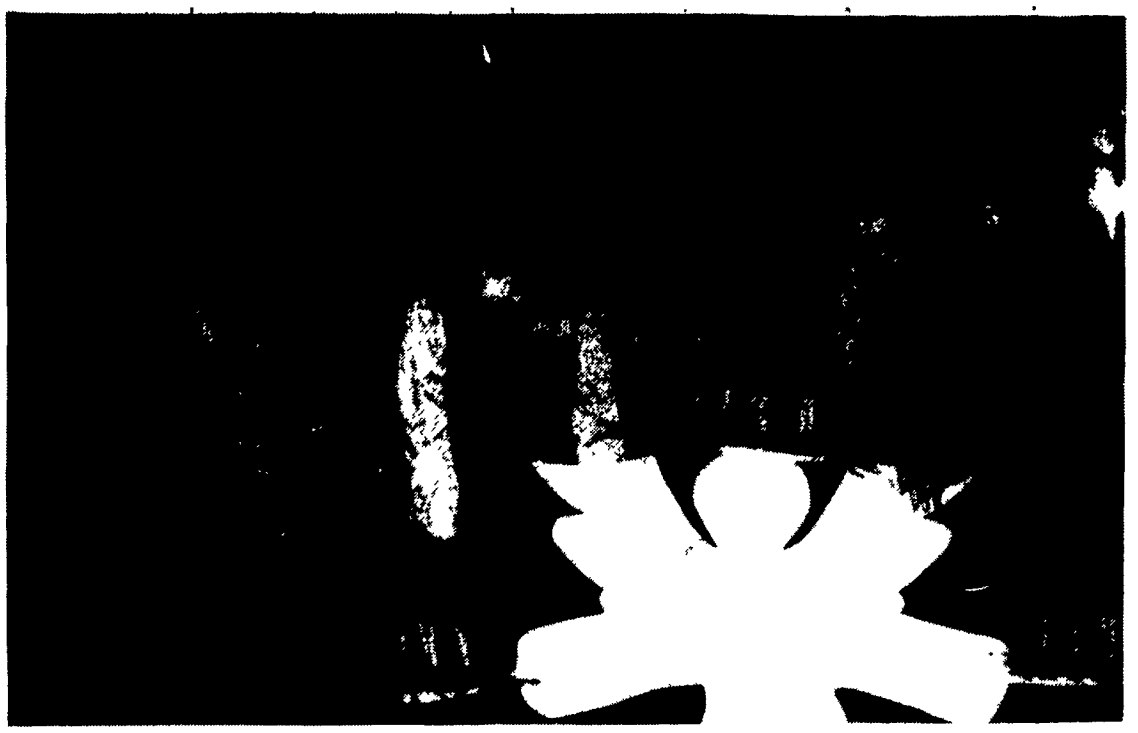
The angel theme for the day was evident by the 239 members who wore angelic smiles and jewelry or an ornament pertaining to angels.

"Usually angels are invisible but today they are a visible part of our program," said Carolyn who presided over the day-long gathering.

The "angelic" caring that members express by their actions was reported throughout the day.

Naomi Bupp who personally financed and pushed for the publication of a state cookbook reported another $20,000 donated to the cookbook scholarship fund. This year six $1,000 and six $250 scholarships were awarded to children and grandchildren of Farm Women members.

Naomi said that she is continually asked when she is going to put out another cookbook. She said, "I'll let that project for another president and another day. I'm tired."



York County Farm Women officers, from right, Arlene Keener, president; Lois Manifold, first vice president; Sandy Hilty, second vice president; Dolly Sutton, secretary, and Treva Whorl, treasurer.

Naomi continues to take care of mailorders from people across the U.S.

Ninety-year-old Edna Kilgore, who is still farming, received a special pin in recognition of her membership. Five 80-year-old members who also received recognition pins included Grace Schum, Rhoda Beck, Nedra Graybeal, Mildred Goehrig, and Florence Stokes.

Newly elected to the office of second vice-president is Sandra Hilty. She is a 25-year member of Group 11.

Dolores Sutton was elected as secretary. The Dover resident is a 37-year member of Society 15.

In the morning session, Jane Baldwin, a Dallastown area teacher, reported on her training in the Ag Awareness seminar held for a week in the summer. The Farm Women support the ag awareness program by sponsoring a teacher to attend the workshop. In Jane's case, her school paid the fee so that the Farm Women's contribution could go to other aspects of the program.

Bread Rises To The Occasion

The perfect complement to autumn meals is bread made with the abundance of fresh fall produce. So fragrant and delicious, fresh-baked breads are simply impossible to resist. They can easily be made, too.

Fast-rising yeast brings home bread-baking in line with the fast pace of the 1990s. This type of yeast cuts rising time nearly in half without sacrificing flavor.

There is only one rising, with a short rest period taking the place of the conventional first rising. For the bread baker who wants to mix now and bake later, there are recipes that allow dough to rise slowly overnight in the refrigerator.

BREAD MACHINE CARAMEL-PECAN ROLLS

1 cup water
2 tablespoons butter, softened
2½ cups bread flour
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons bread machine yeast
Caramel topping*
Filling
2 tablespoons butter, softened

Place first six ingredients in bread machine in order recommended by manufacturer's directions. Select dough/manual cycle.

Flatten dough into 9-inch square on floured surface. Spread with 2 tablespoons butter. Sprinkle with filling. Roll up tightly. Pinch seam to seal. Cut into nine slices.

Place slices in pan with caramel topping in it. Let rise in warm place, covered, one hour or until doubled.

Bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes or until golden brown. Or, after doubled, cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate overnight. Remove from refrigerator and place in cold oven, then turn the heat on. Remove from oven and invert on plate.

Caramel topping*
6 tablespoons butter, melted
½ cup packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon corn syrup
½ cup pecan halves

Mix until blended by hand. Spread in 9x9x2-inch pan.

Filling:
½ cup sugar
1½ teaspoon cinnamon
Mix together.

These rolls are very good and making the dough in the machine really cuts the time down.

Cream butter, sugar, and vanilla in a large bowl until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift together dry ingredients. Combine the creamed mixture, dry ingredients, strawberry jam and sour cream. Beat until well blended, fold in nuts.

Divide batter into 8 greased and floured small aluminum loaf pans. Bake at 350 degrees until done. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pans and cool completely. Serve with strawberry spread.

Strawberry Spread:

THREE FLOUR BRAIDED BREAD

2½ cups white flour
¼ cup whole wheat flour
¼ cup rye flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon caraway seed
2 baking sheets, well greased
2 packages yeast
¼ cup butter
2¼ cups very warm water
4 tablespoons molasses
1 tablespoon cocoa

Combine 2¼ cups white flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon salt and 2 packages yeast. Add butter, softened. Add 2¼ cups water and beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Add 1 cup white flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes. Divide batter into 3 bowls. Make whole wheat dough by beating 2 tablespoons molasses and ¼ cup whole wheat flour into one-third of batter.

Make rye dough by adding 2 tablespoons molasses, 1 teaspoon caraway seed, 1 tablespoon cocoa, and ¼ cup rye flour into one-third of batter. Make white dough by beating in ¼ cup white flour into remaining batter. Knead each dough until smooth and elastic, about 5 minutes. Cover. Let rise in warm place until double, about 1 hour. Punch down; on a floured board divide each dough in half. Roll each piece into 15-inch rope. On a greased baking sheet, braid together a white, wheat and rye rope. Pinch ends to seal. Repeat with remaining doughs. Cover. Let rise until double, about one hour. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-40 minutes or until done. Cool. Makes 2 braids.

This is one of my family's favorite recipes that I came across 15 years ago. It is a real hit around the holidays and family gatherings.

Tioga County Dairy Princess Jolene Hultz writes, "The harvest is in and the turkeys are being hunted. Soon the dinners will be prepared and the feast will begin."

Growing up on a 284-acre farm with 150 Holsteins, Jolene learned to work hard and enjoy life. Now a freshman at Mansfield University, Jolene is looking forward to returning home for the Thanksgiving season.

"I have a lot to be thankful for. My family and friends are just a few of the things I have to be thankful for. One of the great opportunities I have is promoting the dairy industry," she writes.

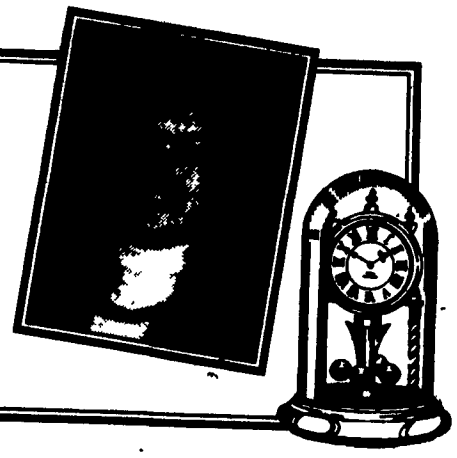
"As my family gathers around the table and gives thanks for blessings we have, we will enjoy many dishes prepared from nature's most perfect beverage — milk. Here is one of those recipes from our table to yours.

CRANBERRY BREAD

3 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnman
¾ cup sugar
½ cup butter, softened
1 egg
1 cup milk
1½ cups cranberries, coarsely chopped
1 cup chopped walnuts, if desired

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine flour, baking soda, and cinnamon; set aside. Cream sugar and butter in large mixer bowl until light and fluffy. Add egg, blend well. Add flour mixture alternately with milk to butter mixture, blending thoroughly after each addition. Fold in cranberries and nuts. Pour batter into buttered loaf pan. Bake one hour or until wooden pick comes out clean. Cool bread in pan on wire rack 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Transfer to wire rack, cool completely.

Taking Time by Rebecca Escott



Now that we've turned our clocks back, you may find yourself and your children in front of the TV more than you would like. Although my personal preference is to greatly limit TV viewing by all family members, I know that may not happen especially during the dark, dreary winter months.

You do have some options for really making that TV viewing time work for you as a family.

First, deliberately review a printed schedule, and as a family, select programs to watch. Try to avoid having each person watch his own show in a room by himself. This opportunity practices decision-making skills and allows all of us to practice evaluating choices. Allow each person an opportunity to vote, choose, and express preference. (It's amazing how kids can learn negotiation skills through this.) I know some families where each person is allowed to select one TV show during the week that will be their "pick." Don't channel surf to make up your mind about what to watch. Limit the amount of time/number of shows each person can select. My husband and I just reviewed the latest PBS program guide. I was really excited about some of the options it listed like Austin City Limits and Wynton Marsalis on Music. I also would love to take time for some New Orleans Cooking Lessons.

While watching TV as a family, hold younger children on your lap. Sit close together. This is especially important for parents who are separated from their children for the majority of the day. This enhances a child's sense of security.

Now that you've selected a show to watch and have settled in to comfortable positions, try playing "TV Talk." Make an envelope with questions for each type of TV program that you might view. During a commercial, hit the mute on your remote control and ask one person to select a questions in the appropriate category and answer it with his opinion or view.

If time allows, other family members can respond or ask additional questions of the person. Each person's opinion needs to be listened to respectfully. During the next commercial break, another person takes a turn. Here are some questions to get you started. Before beginning a show, you might want to jot down some additional ones.

For sports programs: Since the last commercial break, list an many examples as you can remember that illustrate good sportsmanship. If you were coaching the losing team, what would you tell them right now? If you could spend time with any one of the players, who would you choose and what would you want to do together?

For sit-coms: Do you know the people in real life who act the way the characters in this show behave? How do you feel about the way people treat each other in this program?

For suspense programs: Think about what the story is about. Tell why or why not something like that could actually happen in the town where you live. Which character would you NOT want to be? Tell why.

For soap operas: What do you think people like about watching programs like this? What do you think about the way the characters in this program handle problems?

For news/documentaries: Have you learned something that you didn't know before by watching this program? If yes, what have you learned? Do you think some people might disagree with what's being said on this program? Why or why not?

For drama programs: Who is your favorite character and what do you like about him/her? Pretend you are being magically transported into the world portrayed in this program. What would you do once you got there?

For commercials: Do the people in this commercial act like people in real life? Does this commercial try to sell something you think is not healthy? If so, why do you think that is so?

Another way to tune in to a TV show and build some discussion is to keep count of the number of violent acts made in the show (with or without weapons) against people/property. Talk about other ways the problem could have been solved. Discuss whether viewing violence affects the way you view the world. Discuss what purpose violence serves in entertainment.

It's obvious that the suggestions I've offered change TV time radically. If you're hoping that TV time gives you an opportunity to escape, stop thinking, and ignore your responsibilities for awhile, these ideas aren't for you. But if you're frustrated with how the TV robs you of family time, these may improve the situation. Instead of checking out and becoming a passive, couch potato, use your television set as a center for family time and family conversation. It takes a little effort on your part, but this is one way to redeem a popular pastime that otherwise might shut us off from one another.

Bread Rises To The Occasion

WHOLE WHEAT ONION-DILL BREAD

7 cups all-purpose flour
5 cups whole wheat flour
4 tablespoons dry yeast
4 cups warm water
½ cup softened butter
⅓ cup sugar
2 tablespoons salt
½ cup instant minced onion
¼ cup chopped fresh dill or 1 tablespoon dill seed

Dissolve yeast in 4 cups water. Add sugar, salt, onion, and dill to yeast mixture. Mix in 4 cups flour. Add butter and remaining flour. Knead until dough is soft and elastic. Let rise until double in size. Punch down, let rise again. Shape into loaves and put in greased pans. Let rise again until dough is 1-inch above pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Makes 4 loaves. Note: to make a lighter bread, use less whole wheat flour and more white flour.

RAISIN BREAD

2 cups milk
½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup raisins
3 tablespoons yeast
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup warm water
3 eggs
8½ cups flour

First scald milk. Put in mixing bowl: shortening, sugar, salt, and raisins. Pour hot milk on top and stir. Let cool. While cooling put yeast and sugar in warm water to dissolve. While milk is still warm, not hot, add yeast mixture, eggs, and flour. May need ½ cup more flour, but dough should not be dry. Put into greased bowl. Let rise one hour. Form loaves; put into greased pans. Smear 1½ tablespoons cream over top of each loaf.

Sprinkle enough sugar and cinnamon to soak up cream. Let rise until double. Bake in 350 degree oven for 20 minutes.

BUTTERY PULL-APART BREAD

2 loaves

2 packages active dry yeast
2 teaspoons sugar
3 cups warm water
⅔ cup powdered milk
½ cup butter, melted and cooled
½ cup toasted wheat germ
2 teaspoons salt
5½-6 cups flour
Glaze:
¼ cup butter, melted

In a large bowl, dissolve yeast and sugar in warm water. Let stand until foamy, 5-10 minutes. Stir powdered milk, melted butter, wheat germ, and salt into yeast mixture using a heavy-duty electric mixer fitted with the paddle attachment and set on low speed. Beat in flour, ½ cup at a time, until a soft dough forms. On a floured surface, knead dough until smooth and elastic, 5-10 minutes, adding more flour to prevent stickiness.

Place dough in a large greased bowl, turning to coat. Cover loosely with a damp cloth. Let rise in a warm place until doubled, one hour.

Punch down dough. Divide in half. Roll each dough half into a long rope. Cut each rope into 12 equal pieces. Shape each dough piece into an oval. Place rolls, touching each other on 2 ungreased baking sheets.

Cover again. Let rise in a warm place until almost doubled, 20 minutes. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Bake loaves until golden, 20 minutes. Transfer to wire racks to cool.

1 medium onion, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
½ pound provolone cheese, diced
½ pound hard salami, diced
½ pound pepperoni, diced
16-ounce bottle zesty Italian salad dressing

GLAZED BANANA-NUT BREAD

1 cup powdered sugar
1 cup milk

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a loaf pan.

Mix together flour, baking powder, baking soda, and salt. Beat together butter and sugar at medium speed until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition.

Beat in bananas. Gradually beat in flour mixture until well blended. Stir in lemon zest and nuts. Spoon batter into prepared pan. Bake bread until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean, about 55 minutes. Transfer pan to a wire rack to cool for 10 minutes. Turn bread onto rack to finish cooling. Glaze. Mix milk and powdered sugar together. Pour over bread, allowing some to drip down side.

Fertilize Your Lawn This Fall

Dollar for dollar, fertilizing your lawn does more to improve your lawn's quality than any other single maintenance practice. Late fall fertilization in November especially around Thanksgiving, when the lawn stops growing; and before the soil freezes is an excellent time.

Why fertilize in late fall? Fall is the time of year when cool-season turfgrasses recover from summer stress-related conditions, such as drought, heat, and disease. The cooler temperatures and moist conditions are conducive to good turf growth.

Another reported effect of late fertilization is an increase in rooting.

To fertilize in the fall use moderate amounts of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. Rates of ½ to 1 pound of soluble nitrogen per 1,000 square feet are recommended over higher rates (assuming a late summer application was made) to avoid winter injury, excessive growth in spring and leaching or runoff. Or, for Kentucky bluegrass, perennial ryegrass and fine fescue lawns, use 1½ to 2 pounds of a slow release nitrogen fertilizer per 1000 square fect.

Remember to use a turf-grade fertilizer. These grades have a high percentage of nitrogen (N) and lesser amounts of phosphorus (P) and potassium (K). The early grass fertilizers had an N-P-K ratio of 10-6-4 and were packaged in 50 pound bags. This provided 5 pounds of nitrogen per bag and the recommended coverage was 5,000 square feet (or 1 pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet).

A recent study at the University of Illinois showed that when nitrogen was applied at moderate rates in late fall—1 pound of N/1000 square feet—both urea and its slow release counterpart, sulfur-coated urea provided a better early spring color response than Milorganite, an organic alternative.

However, when Milorganite or sulfur-coated urea was applied in late fall at a higher rate (2 pounds of nitrogen/1000 square feet), results as far as spring greenup were similar to those obtained from applying urea at a lower rate (1 pound of N/1000 square feet in late fall and ½ pund of N/square feet in early spring).

Slow or controlled-release nitrogen sources are better than soluble sources on sandy soils because of reduced potential for leaching. Nitrogen fertilizer should never be applied to frozen soil due to the increased chance of nitrogen runoff.

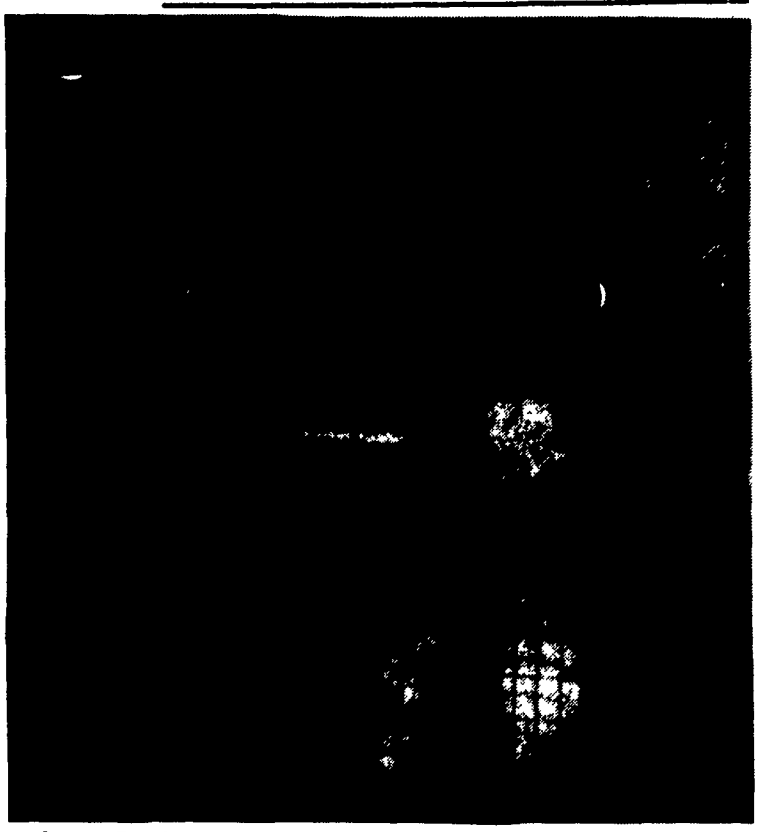
MILLPORT (Potter Co.) — Rabbit sales bring in thousands of dollars for kids each year. It's a growing business for 4-H'ers and FFA'ers according to Debbie Kibbe, a Potter County rabbit leader.

At the Potter County Livestock Sale held in Millport recently, Charlie Kibbe of Harrison Valley took top honors after years of working with New Zealand Whites. Top bidder Larry Coole of Coudersport bid $27 per pound. Helena Chemical paid $15 per pound for the reserve.

Charlie showed the grand champion and the reserve meat pen. His rabbits also had the highest rate of gain. Judging for the meat pens require that the each rabbit must weight in at least four pounds with three rabbits per pen 69 days or less in age and uniform color. The meat pens are also judged for meat value the same as other animals.

Charlie is a member of the Famous Wabbit 4-H Club and the FFA Headwaters Chapter of Northern Potter High School. He also shows dairy cattle and market steers.



Larry Coole, right, pays Charlie Kibbe $27 per pound for his grand champion rabbits at the Potter County Livestock Sale.

Charlie Kibbe shows the reserve champion rabbits that Helena Chemical paid $15 per pound.

What do sailors and farmers have in common?
They both depend on wind
Winds forms when warm air rises in the sky, which makes what meteorologists call a low pressure area Cold air then sinks down to fill the gap left by the warm air
Trade winds — a kind of wind that blows constantly — change the weather all over the world Because the sun shines directly down on the equator almost all the time, warm air constantly rises and cold air replaces it Hot air moves away from the equator toward the North Pole and South Pole, where it cools These winds push huge, swirling currents in the ocean that, just like the air, move warm currents away from the equator, and cool ones back toward it The winds that blow over these currents then carry warm or cool temperatures to the land nearby
It's easy to understand why sailing ships, like the boats Christopher Columbus used, needed wind to cross the ocean But farmers? Well, winds blow in clouds over farms that rain on the crops Then winds blow the clouds away, so the sun can shine on the crops and help them grow
Farmers need a lot of other things besides trade winds to farm well And sailors need skill and good equipment to sail across the ocean But one thing is for certain — to get started, they couldn't do either without wind!
Scientifically yours,
Twig

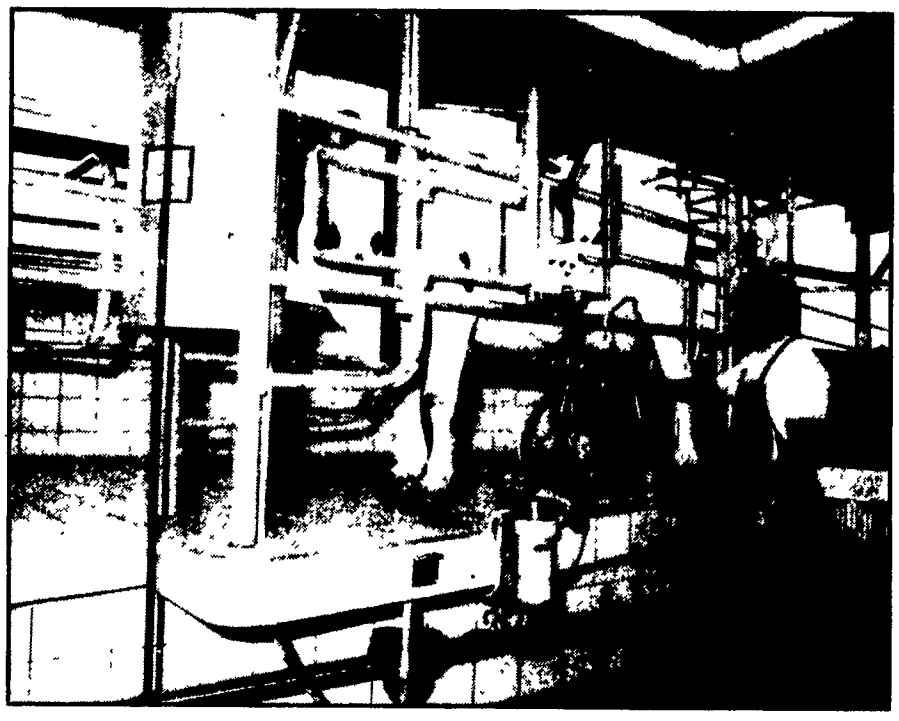
AUTOFLOW™

MILKING STALLS



With Non-Stop Cow Traffic

Using less stalls at maximum efficiency lowers the total cost of your automation and improves labor efficiency. Comparison shows it takes as much as 50% fewer AutoFlow stalls to achieve the same throughput as with similarly automated herringbone and parallel systems.

As milking equipment becomes more sophisticated and more expensive, the investment per stall becomes an important factor. The Surge AutoFlow parlor maximizes efficiencies per stall without sacrificing cow throughput.

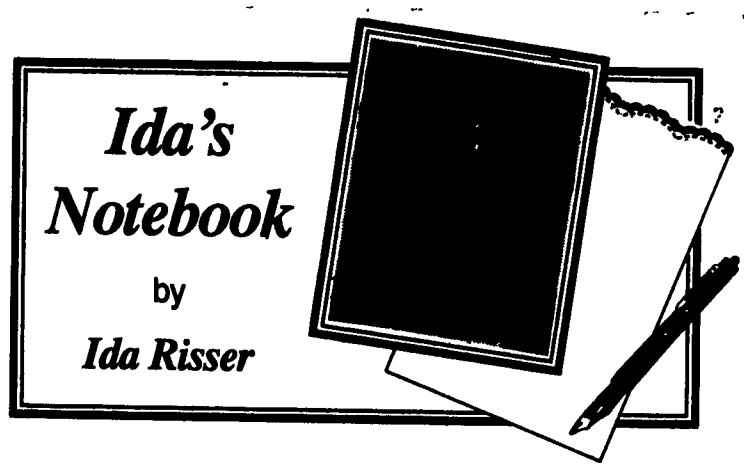
SURGE



The other day we were privileged to entertain an Ethiopian teacher in our home. He is staying with members of our church for a month. He has been teaching for almost 30 years and teaches all grades in a school started 75 years ago by a Presbyterian doctor.

He toured our dairy farm and I'm sure that he was impressed with the 1000 gallon bulk milk tank and the stainless steel feed mixer. The cows in his area give a very small amount of milk and the crops are not bountiful as it is quite dry.

There are 11 in his household even though he only has five children. You see, a number of older relatives live with him and his wife. I was surprised to hear that he has a small farm that he works on after his teaching job is done.

He was quite interested in our large ears of field corn. Our son, Philip, told him he would have to have hybrid corn seed to grow the same kind. And, he gave him some. Jirata also took some of my bean seeds along.

When he ate with us, I had corn-on-the-cob which had been frozen. He had never eaten sweet corn before and seemed to really like it. Our almost 2-year-old grandson ate with us and he too liked the corn so much that he ate some of the tender cob.

Our church has arranged a full schedule of activities for Jirata and I'm sure he will go home with a lot to share. In the spring, members of our church visited Ethiopia and came home with wonderful memories of people that they had met in Africa.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Members from 28 Farm Women Societies in Lancaster County gathered for a day of celebrating at the Farm and Home Center on November 4.

After a year of holding bake sales and fundraisers, members collectively raised $13,540 for charities. They used a portion of that money to submit $3,450 to the Farm and Home Center for upkeep.

Joyce Slaymaker, president of the county society for the past two years, transferred the reins of leadership to Kathryn Fry, formerly the vice president. Allegra Leininger is first vice president, Pauline Risser, secretary, and Martha Gerber, treasurer.

A memorial service was held in memory of nine members who died during the past year. Nancy Axe of Society 20, Marian Kurtz of Society 13, and E. Viola Wolf of Society 1 were in charge of the service.

Entertainment for the day included special music by Lowell Fry, son of president Kathryn Fry, and a Musical Revue by Lois Feltham, Cheryl Miller, and Patsy Myers.

With An Eye On NAILE, Team Prepares To Hammer Home A Championship

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Livestock judging teams know there are "moments of truth."

For Regina Landis, it is the nerve-wracking silence that is mandatory for participants during the entire length of the judging contest.

For Lisa Reiff, it is the trial of enduring competition during the state 4-H Days, a prerequisite for national competition, held last July.

For Dale Livengood, it is the breed competition "scenarios" that test your knowledge of expected progency differences (EPDs) and how to fit that knowledge into actual practice during the judging event.

For Gerald Boyd, it is judging beef that can really test his nerves.

All four of the Lancaster County 4-H Livestock Judging Team members have to face these special trials during competition at the North American International Livestock Exposition (NAILE) in Louisville, Ky. on Tuesday, Nov. 14.

While the team travels to Louisville, members will practice on selected farms enroute, brushing up on their judging and reasoning skills. Practice farms are scattered throughout Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Kentucky. The group will stop at Ohio State University and the University of Kentucky. Also, the team will tour Churchhill Downs, the Louisville Slugger Plant, and Thoroughbred horse farms in Lexington.

The contest itself consists of judging 10 classes of livestock (beef, sheep, and swine) and includes tests on performance data, oral reasons, and questions.

All of the Lancaster County members face even more difficult odds because Pennsylvania last won the overall contest in 1961.

The team averages 8.5 years of involvement in 4-H clubs. As a result, each has participated in a wide array of events, garnered many ribbons, and developed in a way that makes them contenders for the NAILE crown.

"I've been around pigs and I know what they're like," said Gerald Boyd. Gerald has exhibited many champion hogs in county fairs since joining 4-H nine years ago. Gerald, 17, the son of Kerry and Deb Boyd, Ephrata, said that he has shown sheep and dairy, but hogs are special. Gerald attends Ephrata High School.

For Regina Landis, sheep are her strengths. Regina said she's been showing for eight years. Regina said that although the team works together to solve some weaknesses in their judging and reasoning efforts, she is still working to improve her strengths in the hog judging classes.

Regina, 16, daughter of Abram and Dottie Landis, Manheim, a 4-H'er for eight years, said, "I don't like judging swine, but it's not my worst area. But that's the thing I dread more than anything — the hog classes. I did show hogs for two years but I'd rather be dealing with sheep or beef." Regina attends Lancaster Mennonite High School.

Lisa Reiff dreads the silence the most. During competition, "there's not supposed to be any talking, so it's sort of hard for me to deal with that," she said. Lisa, 17, daughter of Lloyd and Laura Reiff, Strasburg, said not being able to talk during competition is so hard because "I like to let my feelings out and talk."

For Lisa, nine-year 4-H member, judging is more difficult but giving reasons is her forte. Lisa attends Lampeter-Strasburg High School.

Dale Livengood said he scores best at beef judging with experience from showing at county fairs. He said he's been doing well at beef judging and giving reasons. "I'm not the best on the team. But I enjoy beef judging."

A challenge for Dale is providing reasons and judging for breeding ewes, said Dale, 17, son of Earl and Joyce Livengood, Lancaster. The eight-year 4-H member attends Faith Mennonite High School.

One of the biggest challenges for Lisa Reiff was the recent Pennsylvania 4-H Achievement Days held the last week in July. The team faced the most pressure than any contest at that event because it was a requirement to move onto national competition.

For the team, this is especially challenging now that school is in session, and it becomes difficult to juggle schedules and work out the times to be on the road, attending competition or practicing during the weekday.

During NAILE competition, the team takes down notes and has to memorize them within 10-15 minutes. Then, alone, they face the judges and have to give their reasons for the placement.

But the team is never certain about what to expect when they arrive at the contest. To them, enduring a scenario is challenging because they have to understand what EPDs and other traits will mean to solving the challenge placed by the judges.

Recently, the team practiced at the farm of Regina Landis in Manheim. Team members were judging Hampshire ewe lambs and presented with a "scenario," including a breakdown of genetic evaluations of the flock.

But the endless practices are often like trying to study for a scholastic aptitude test — it's hard to prepare for a quiz in science when the questions could be about psychology or geography.

"You never know what you can expect when you get into the contest," said Lisa.

This year, the team placed first at the Penn State Block and Bridle contest in March, the Delaware Valley Block and Bridle contest in April, the York County Livestock Contest in July, the state 4-H Achievement Days in July, and the Eastern States Exposition in September. The team placed second at the Southeast Regional 4-H Livestock Contest in July and second at the Eastern National Livstock Show in September.

Chet Hughes, coach and county livestock agent, said this was the 15th group he has taken to the NAILE since he began work at the extension office in 1982. Team coaches are Hughes, Greg Musser, Fred Weaver, Margaret Diffenbach, and Mark Campbell.

While the team travels to Louisville, members will practice on selected farms enroute, brushing up on their judging and reasoning skills. Practice farms are scattered throughout Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Kentucky. The group will stop at Ohio State University and the University of Kentucky. Also, the team will tour Churchhill Downs, the Louisville Slugger Plant, and Thoroughbred horse farms in Lexington.

Lancaster County 4-H Livestock Judging Team members will be traveling to compete at the North American International Livestock Exposition (NAILE) in Louisville, Ky. on Tuesday, Nov. 14. At the Landis Farm, the team inspects a Hampshire ewe lamb. From left, Dale Livengood, Lisa Reiff, Gerald Boyd, and Regina Landis.

Regina said that although the team works together to solve some weaknesses in their judging and reasoning efforts, she is still working to improve her strengths in the hog judging classes.

Dale Livengood said he scores best at beef judging with experience from showing at county fairs. He said he's been doing well at beef judging and giving reasons. "I'm not the best on the team. But I enjoy beef judging."

Farm Safety Camp

LEWISBURG (Union Co.)—160 youth participated in a Farm Safety Camp on October 14, at the Beaver Fairgrounds, Beaver Springs, hosted by Penn State Cooperative Extension with sponsorship by Capital Blue Cross and Pennsylvania Blue Shield.

The children had a fun-filled day learning serious safety information in livestock handling, ATV riding, tractor driving, pesticide precautions, operating lawn mowers, first aid, fire prevention, hazard awareness around manure pits and ponds, PTO and corn picker entanglements, and dangers of playing in gravity flow wagons. Strong support from the community—businesses, agricultural groups and health organizations created a memorable program—one that will improve each child's safe future on the farm.

4-H HAPPENINGS

4-H Teens Learn Local Government

Teens from four counties learned about the functioning of local government at 4-H Local Government Day in Bloomsburg.

The participants were faced with the fictitious situation in which "Green County" faced an immediate need for more subsidized housing.

Local officials and businessmen have formed a coalition to solve Green County's problem. They have chosen three sites: the Woodsey Estate (zoned prime residential), Rimfire Farm (zoned prime agricultural), and Old Town Motel (zoned Industrial). All sites will require the zoning board to conduct a hearing to consider granting special exceptions to allow the kinds of housing construction being proposed.

The youth took the roles of various citizens, taxpayer groups, school officials and elected officials as they explored the pros and cons of each of the proposed sites. They learned the duties of local official and community leaders as well as the correct process for bringing concerns to the attention of local government bodies.

4-H Shooting Sports Invites New Members

With an estimated 200 million firearms in homes in the United States, it's more important than ever to teach young people about gun and archery safety, because teaching about it saves lives.

That's the primary emphasis in 4-H shooting sports programs. Young people in the program learn to always be aware of people around them when they're shooting and to treat every gun or bow as if it is loaded.

They also develop good sportsmanship. By striving to improve their marksmanship, participants also get experience in establishing goals and working toward them. They learn that practicing is the only way to excel.

Boys and girls ages 11 and older are invited to join the 4-H Archery program that meets at the Montgomery County 4-H Center. The program, under the leadership of volunteer Mike Gottlieb, is starting its fourth season this fall. It will begin on Tuesday, Nov. 28 and meet weekly through the end of April, from 7:15 p.m.-8:30 p.m.

All experience levels are invited. All bows, arrows and safety equipment are provided; however, members may also bring their own equipment at the instructor's discretion.

If you intend to bring your own, please bring it to the first meeting so that we can assess whether or not it can be used on our indoor range. Also, a parent must attend the first meeting with their youngsteer. The cost for this program is $20 for the season and the funds are used to maintain equipment, as well as provide for medals for each members to participate in the year-end tournament. Partial scholarships are available if needed.

For more information or to register for the 4-H Archery programs, please call Helaine Brown, 4-H agent, at (610) 489-4315 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

York County 4-H Meat Bird Roundup

The York County Poultry Club held its annual roundup and sale at Rentzel's Auction Barn on Oct. 19. The judge for the event was Herb Jordan, retired poultry specialist from Penn State.

Fourteen capons, three turkeys, and two roasters were exhibited for evaluation. One of the capons and one of the roasters were exhibitied by Cloverbuds. Cloverbuds is a relatively new area for 4-H which youngsters seven years old may participate, but are not in competition with regular 4-H members.

Jonathan Werning of York earned champion capon honors with his 12.25-pound bird. Carlos R. Leffler, Inc. of Richland was the high bidder on the champion at $9.50 per pound. The reserve champion capon was exhibited by Heather Bankert of Red Lion and sold to the Ray Hoover Family of Mt. Wolf for $10 per pound.

Taking home champion honors with her 28.25 pound turkey was Shanna Daughtery of York. Nancy Riedel of Dallastown purchased the champion turkey for $3.50 per pound.

Reserve champion turkey went to Jeremy Wilson of New Freedom. The reserve champion sold to Rich's Bike Shop of Wellsville for $3 per pound.

Average prices of capons with the champions was $8.21 per pound and without champions $7.95. Average turkey price was $3.33 and for roasters the average was $7.37.

How To Select Child Care

NANCY WILSON
Penn State Extension

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—What should a parent check for when selecting a child care program? First, find out if the program is licensed or registered. Pennsylvania requires that child care centers be licensed. Family child care homes and group homes should be registered with the Department of Public Welfare. After deciding on home care or center care, parents should visit several sites before a decision is made.

Tour the center or home and look carefully to see if it is clean and safe. Look for things like broken glass in the yard and clean floors in the eating and play areas. Are there dirty dishes or food laying around? Toys and play equipment should not be broken or have rough edges. Cleaning materials and medicines must be kept in locked cabinet.

Plants, which may be poisonous, should be out of the reach of children. Check for the location of emergency numbers and the first aid kit. Ask where the children take naps. The nap area needs to be clean and in a quiet location.

Walk around the outside play areas. Check the condition of play equipment. A play area near traffic must be fenced in.

Look over the daily schedule to see the activities planned. Look for times of active play and quiet play throughout the day. Is there a planned time to read to the children? There should be a variety of art materials and toys for the children to use and lots of books that are located where children can easily reach them.

Ask staff about their training and experience working with children. Find out how they handle discipline. Do they encourage children to be independent? Observe staff interacting with the other children.

Include your child in a visit to the center or home to see how he or she adapts to the other children and the staff. Get references from other parents who have children in the program. Find out about payments policies and those for vacation or sick days.

Finally, ask the question, "Is this a place where I want my child to spend a large portion of his or her day?". If you have any doubts, continue to look for a child care program where you feel comfortable with your choice.

Clarion County Builds 90-Foot Banana Split

Melanie Snyder, the 1995-96 Clarion-Venango Dairy Princess, promoted the dairy industry by making a 90-foot banana split on Main Street, Clarion, before the Autumn Leaf Parade on Saturday, October 14. Crooks Clothing sponsored this event in conjunction with their store's 90th Anniversary.

Melanie had lots of assistance from many dairy-related organizations. These included the Clarion-Venango County Holstein Club, the Venango Dairy Club, and the Clarion County Farm Bureau Woman's Committee. These people used 40 half gallons of vanilla ice cream, 6 gallons of strawberry, chocolate, and pineapple toppings, 15 cans of real whipped cream, 100 bananas, and 7 pints of nuts. This 90-foot banana split fed 700 people who were waiting for the Autumn Leaf Parade to begin.

Pa. Grange Kicks Off Convention With Contests, Donation

WEST MIDDLESEX (Mercer Co.) — They say charity begins at home.

It was only fitting that the first day of the Pennsylvania State Grange convention here in Mercer County opened with a financial contribution to an area deaf center for children.

The Pennsylvania State Grange Deaf Activities Department presented a check for $200 to the Mercer County Education and Rehabilitation Center in Hermitage as part of the Sign-A-Song and Public Speaking program held in the West Middlesex High School auditorium.

The check was made possible by a donation from Jackson Grange #1506 of Mercer County. The 123rd annual Pennsylvania State Grange convention was held Oct. 23-26.

Stephanie Strecansky, executive director of the center, thanked the Grange for its long-standing support the last two decades.

"The Grange has always been there for us the past 20 years and has been very, very helpful in providing financial assistance to aid in our mission," Strecansky said to the audience of about 500 people. "We thank you deeply for enabling us to work with deaf and hard-of-hearing children."

The Sign-A-Song competition is held simultaneously with the Public Speaking contest to showcase the talents of Grange members. Sign-A-Song entrants perform sign language to a musical selection incorporating theatrics, body expression and "signability" while public speakers demonstrate the skills that were learned through participation in the Grange.

Dean Miller of Battlefield Grange in Adams County took first place in the individual performance of the Sign-A-Song competition.

The judges credited Miller with great interpretation of the song, outstanding body expression and a good to excellent overall performance. By placing first, Miller won the right to compete at the 1996 National Grange convention in Spokane, Washington.

In order of finish in the Sign-A-Song was Ila May McMillin, Westfield Grange, Lawrence County, Laura McMillin, Westfield Grange, Roy McMillin, Westfield Grange, and Nancy McMillin, also Westfield Grange.

The McMillin family won first-place honors in the group Sign-A-Song.

The public speaking winner in age group 14-18 was Brian Ebersole, Perry Valley, Perry County.

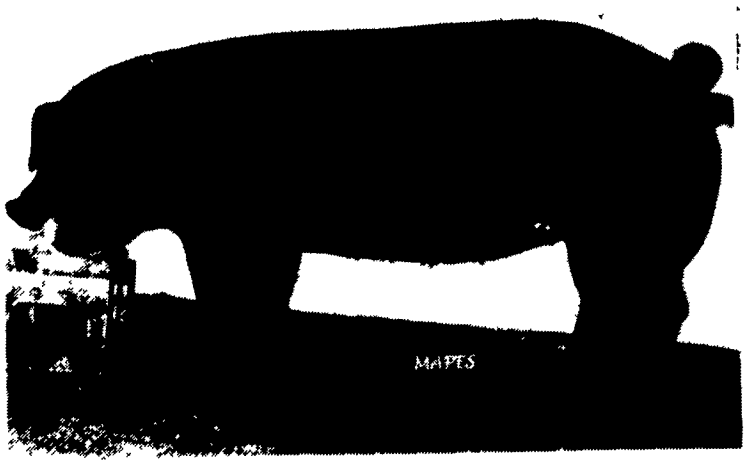
In the age group 19-24 first was Stacy Ebersole, Perry Valley, Perry County, followed by Floyd Buffington, Community Grange, Dauphin County.

In the age group 25-35, Mary Ann Keith, Lincoln Grange, Huntingdon County, finished first, followed by Laura McMillin, Lawrence County.

The Pennsylvania State Grange is an agricultural, rural and community service organization with over 33,000 members and is dedicated to making Pennsylvania a better place to live through legislative policy, community action and member services.

The Grange is the legislative voice for agriculture and rural issues in Harrisburg and is holding its convention to set legislative policies for the coming year.

Ice Pick X Legacy National Champ



AUSTIN, Minn. — Champion gilt of the 1995 National Barrow Show (often called the "World Series" of swine shows) was Ice Pick X Legacy, shown by David C. Holloway, Glen Rock, Pa. The barrow show was held in Austin in September.

Holloway indicated that of the seven Duroc classes, Holloway Durocs had three firsts. This was about a week after another gilt was named supreme champion female at the recent Maryland State Fair.

USDA Reminds Producers OF FSA Elections

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—Committee Chairman Paul Kline reminded producers of elections to be held Nov. 24-Dec. 4 by mail ballot to elect approximately 3,000 new Farm Service Agency (FSA) Committees for specific agricultural counties or areas.

The committees, consisting of three members, administer farm programs such as commodity price support loans and payments, conservation programs, indemnity and disaster payments, crop insurance and farm ownership and operating loans on a county or community basis. They also hire a county executive director to supervise day-to-day FSA county office operations.

"These committees represent the various types of farming and agricultural regions in the county or area they serve," Kline said. "Cultural diversity of the area, women, all age groups and variations in farm income are reflected in committee makeup."

Nationwide elections for new committee members at this time is necessary because of the extensive reorganization of the USDA by the Clinton Administration. The new Farm Service Agency has been created, combining duties and responsibilities previously carried out individually by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Farmers Home Administration, and Federal Crop Insurance Corporation.

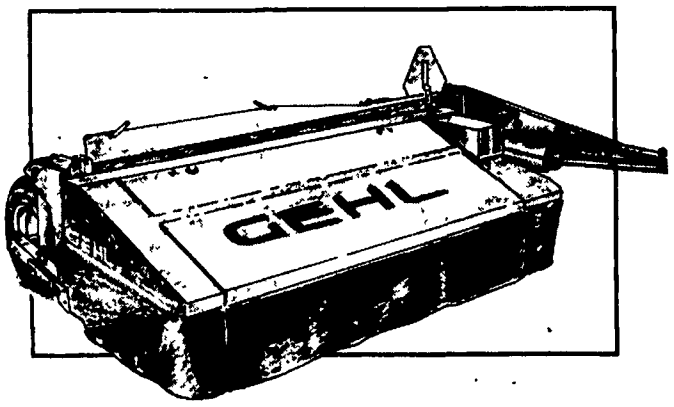
GEHL

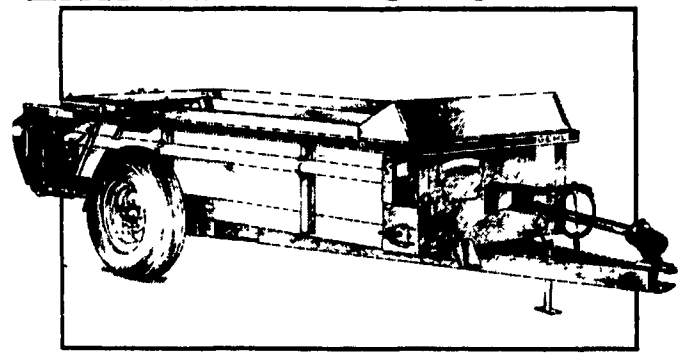
CUT HAY THE DISC WAY!



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy. The DC2340 has 7 discs and a 9 foot cutting width; the DC2360 has 8 discs and a 10-1/2 foot cutting width.

- High speed discs – Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions; the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life.
- Sturdy frame – Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability.
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer.
- Standard hydraulic tongue – Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat

EVEN WHEN IT'S EMPTY...IT'S LOADED



When you're checking out box-type manure spreaders, look to Gehl for a better spreader! Gehl box spreaders are available in five sizes ranging from 135 to 425 bushel heaped capacities. Gehl box spreaders deliver these and many more advanced features:

- Gehl-Tuff flooring is slippery so manure slides out easily.
- T-bar apron chains are extra-strong for durability.
- Galvanized steel sides are more corrosion resistant.
- Single or tandem axle models available.
- 10-year warranty on sides and floors.
- Hydraulic apron drive (optional) to match your specific application needs.

ANSWER — Sue Werner, Lebanon, wanted a recipe for alfalfa jelly. Thanks to Mrs. D. Fisher and to Janet Spangler, York Springs, who both believe it is made like mint jelly. Janet writes that special jellies such as alfalfa and corn cob are unique in their own way. With all the insecticides and pesticides used on grasses, you need to be careful. She has tasted alfalfa jelly and believes it is made like mint jelly. Substitute alfalfa for the mint leaves in the following recipe.

Mint Jelly

1 cup mint leaves (packed lightly)
1 cup boiling water
1 cup apple juice
¾ cups sugar
Green vegetable coloring

Pour boiling water over mint leaves. Allow to steep one hour. Press juice from leaves. Add 2 tablespoons of this extract to apple juice and sugar. Boil rapidly to jelly stage. Tint with green vegetable coloring. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses.

ANSWER — A reader has a lot of turkey burger and wanted new and different recipes to use it. Thanks to Betty Loump, Bernville, and an anonymous reader for sending recipes. Also, turkey burger may be substituted for ground beef in most recipes.

Turkey Meatballs

1 pound turkey burger
1 tablespoon parsley
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup cheese
1 small onion
½ cup crumbs
¼ cup milk

Betty writes that her kids don't like white meat from turkey so every time the family kills turkeys, she takes the white meat to the butcher to grind for ground turkey meat. When she makes this recipe, she usually doubles it. Then she puts spaghetti sauce or barbecue sauce on the meatballs to make a meatball sandwich. This recipe makes about 20-24 balls depending on how big you make the balls.

Stuffed Turkey Roll

1 beaten egg
½ cup quick-cooking rolled oats
1 pound raw turkey burger
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup butter
½ teaspoon ground sage
¼ teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
2 cups bread cubes, toasted
2 slices bacon

In bowl, combine egg, oats, 1 teaspoon salt, and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Add turkey. Mix well. On waxed paper, pat mixture to a 12x9-inch rectangle. In saucepan, cook onion and celery in butter until tender. Stir in sage, thyme, pepper and salt. Toss with bread cubes and 2 tablespoons water. Spread on top of meat mixture. Roll up meat, jelly roll style. Starting from near end, press edge to seal. Seal ends. Transfer roll, seam side down, to greased baking dish. Halve bacon strips crosswise, lay on top turkey roll. Bake, uncovered in 325 degree oven for 55 to 66 minutes. Good with ketchup on it.

Here's a recipe from Anna Martin, Denver.

Turkey Loaf

1 cup chicken broth
2 eggs
1 cup bread crumbs
1 pound ground turkey
½ cup finely chopped celery
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon crushed sage
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Mix all ingredients thoroughly and place in loaf pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 1¼ hours or until firm. Serves 6.

ANSWER — Raydean Smith, Enola, wanted a recipe for hamburger macaroni soup. Thanks to Anna Martin, Denver, for sending a recipe.

Mac 'N' Tomato Soup

1 can tomato soup
Prepare soup with one can water and add the following:
¼ pound browned ground beef
2 teaspoons chili powder
½ cup cooked elbow macaroni

ANSWER — Jack Sunday, Carlisle, wanted a previously published recipe for eggplant. Thanks to a reader who sent the recipe originally submitted by Margaret Callihan, Langhorne.

Eggplant Casserole

2 cups pared cubed eggplant
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion

Cook in unsalted water until tender about 7 minutes. Drain. Freeze if desired. Defrost when ready to serve. Add:

2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 slices white bread torn into small pieces
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt and pepper
1 cup shredded sharp cheese

Combine all ingredients. Mix well. Pour into a greased one-quart casserole. Bake uncovered 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Sprinkle with ¼ cup shredded sharp cheese. Bake 5 minutes longer.

ANSWER — For the reader who requested seeds to grow stuffing tomatoes, here are several addresses from our readers. Sorry, we were wrong. You do not need to cut out the insides of the tomato. Stuffing tomatoes with hollow insides are grown from seed. Thanks to Louise Rapp, Easton; Nancy Zinck, Jersey Shore, Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.Va., and other readers for setting the record straight. Stuffing tomato seeds may be ordered from the following: Burgess Seed & Plant Co., 905 Four Seasons Rd., Bloomington, IL 61701. Gurney's Seed & Nursery Co., 110 Capital St., Yankton, S.Dak. 57079. This is the only crop they grow. They offer both fungicide treated seed, regular, and pre-germinated seed. Send SASE for order form. You many save your own seed in subsequent years. Jean writes, "I have been growing them for four years — best flavor ever tasted. Very large beans but do not taste mealy."

Jacob Garber, Feasterville, and several other readers also recommended the Fern Hill Farm as a source.

AFIA Argues Feed Industry Case On Hazcom

WASHINGTON, D.C. — During testimony before the National Advisory Committee on OSHA on Oct. 19, American Feed Industry Association (AFIA) representatives stressed the undo amount of paperwork currently required under the Hazard Communication Standard (HCS). Material Safety Data Sheets (MSDS) are at the heart of AFIA's concern.

According to AFIA Director of Feed Production Brian Bursiek, a typical feed mill is required to file and index between 200-500 MSDSs, which in turn requires plant managers to spend 40-50 hours annually updating the MSDS files. Master records retained at corporate headquarters often add up to double the amount of MSDSs and associated time required to maintain them. AFIA estimates nearly $3 million is spent annually by the feed industry alone in maintaining MSDS files.

John Ojanen, manager of safety and occupational health for Southern States Cooperative, Inc., testified, "MSDSs have been issued for so many seemingly 'non-hazardous' products, that the MSDS has, to some degree, lost significance to employees and employers as well." He said, "MSDSs should be limited to 'hazardous' chemicals."

One possible solution put forward by AFIA is to exempt feed ingredients from the HCS. Ojanen and Bursiek both testified that feed ingredients are already regulated by FDA's Current Good Manufacturing Practices (CGMP). "By federal definition," stated Bursiek, "feed is 'food,' and it is a contradiction in terms if feed ingredients are labeled as hazardous." Relative to the feed industry, AFIA estimates that only a few dozen MSDSs merit HazCom compliance, including maintenance substances.

Another possible solution would be for OSHA to develop a list of recognized hazardous chemicals. The Department of Transportation and the Environmental Protection Agency already have several regulations in place listing chemicals believed to be most hazardous to the public and the environment. A list compiled from these various sources could serve as the basis for MSDS generation.

In addition to the paperwork burden posed by the current MSDS requirements, Ojanen explained problems inherent in the length and formatting of the MSDSs. He emphasized a need for all MSDSs to be standardized in format, limited to a specified length, and written in layman's language.

Bursiek concluded his testimony by urging OSHA to reinvent the HCS so MSDSs will only be generated for chemicals that have been scientifically determined to be truly hazardous.

Another public hearing is scheduled for December 1995. OSHA will likely come forth with a proposed rule in late 1996.

For a complete copy of the HazCom testimony of John Ojanen and/or Brian Bursiek, contact Bursiek at AFIA, (703) 524-0810.

THE 1995 FARM BILL AND THE POULTRY INDUSTRY

James W. Dunn
Professor of Agricultural Economics

The 1995 Bill is now under consideration by the U.S. Congress.

Although neither poultry nor eggs have commodity support programs, the Farm Bill will still have an impact on the industry.

With their newly won control of Congress, the Republicans passed in both houses a plan to balance the federal budget in seven years. The 1995 Farm Bill is embedded in the budget and is therefore not a bipartisan effort but rather a Republican program which received unanimous Democratic opposition in the agriculture committees. Furthermore, since the commodity programs are included in the budget bills, rather than being a separate piece of legislation, this meant that neither branch of Congress had a separate vote on the Farm Bill, nor was the bill broadly debated or amended on the Floor.

The Farm Bill is, for better or worse, the result of 10 Republican senators and 27 Republican representatives. The House version didn't even get the approval of the House Agriculture Committee. Four status-quo southern Republicans who objected to the provisions in the House version about cotton joined the Democrats to defeat the plan.

The resulting House bill is almost identical to the committee version, but was put in by the chairman of the House Budget Committee. The House and Senate bills are quite different and a common bill will have to be worked out in conference. The House bill makes greater changes than the Senate bill but both produce some changes that are important to poultry.

The most important items are the continuation of the Export Enhancement Program (EEP) and the Market Promotion Program (MPP). The EEP is a system of export subsidies designed to make our exports competitive in markets where they must compete with subsidized exports from elsewhere. Usually the competing sources are the European Community, which heavily subsidizes its agricultural exports. The MPP is a program where government funding is used to match industry funding to help promote U.S. agricultural products in foreign markets.

Both programs have been used to help increase poultry exports to Hong Kong and other Pacific markets. Exports to these markets have been an important part of the growth in poultry exports in recent years. The export growth of the past few years has been very significant.

Perhaps most important is how the growth has come from only a few markets. Hong Kong (China), Mexico, and Russia are the source of most of the growth. Although their problems with the devaluation of the peso are hurting Mexican poultry imports, over time NAFTA will certainly increase imports to Mexico. Russia, of course, has its own problems.

However, Hong Kong and China are another matter. They represent the world's largest market and one that has the potential to buy much more. Development of this market through the EEP and the MPP seem to be exactly what these programs were designed to achieve. Although funding for both was decreased to meet the budget balancing targets, each will continue for the next seven years. Spending for the EEP and MPP would have been reduced because of GATT limitations anyway, so the de facto effect of the funding reductions is not very great.

Changes in the feed grain support programs are also significant to the poultry industry. The Senate and House versions of these programs are very different but they will have approximately the same effect. In recent years, feed grain prices have been high enough to make the programs less important than for many other commodities. This year's changes reduces the levels of support further, which will have the effect of making the feed grain programs largely irrelevant in the Senate version and completely irrelevant in the House version. The Senate version decreases the effective support level within the framework of the existing program. The House version decouples the payments from the farmer's planting decisions, instead giving the farmer transition payments as compensation for eliminating the program.

With the feed grain program changes, feed prices will be set entirely by the free market, with no government imposed acreage reductions or other restrictions on what a farmer can plant. This will ultimately lead to lower feed prices.

Prices may be more variable, however. As farmers plant whatever the market dictates, they may change the number of acres of corn or soybeans that are planted by more from one year to the next than is allowed now. This potentially could cause more dramatic swings in these prices.

A new program that has potential to help poultry operators is the Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP). This program combines the functions of most current incentive and cost-share agricultural conservation programs. Producers would bid for the cost-share using an evaluative tool such as the environmental benefits index. Priority would be given to bids leveraged by state and local contributions (such as from the Pennsylvania Nutrient Management Program).

Agreements would be for five to 10 years, although the payout schedule would depend on practice or combination of practices (e.g., cost share for a livestock waste facility might be granted over two years but could include a nutrient management program to be followed for five years.)

Livestock operations above a certain size are not eligible, with the size limitations (capacity) being beef cattle, 1,000 head; dairy cattle, 700 head; swine, 2,500 head; sheep or lambs, 10,000 head; turkeys, 55,000 birds (per cycle); and laying hens or broilers, 100,000 birds (per cycle).

Initially the program would be $100 million/ year, all going to

Angus Journal Names Land Stewardship Winner

COATESVILLE (Chester Co.) — Dr. William L. Elkins, owner of Buck Run Farm, Coatesville, is the eastern region winner of the 1995 Land Stewardship Award presented by the Angus Journal, official publication of the American Angus Association.

Inside Elkins beats the heart of a true conservationist. He believes that his farm should work as an ecosystem between the land and the cattle, with less interference by man.

His farm background and Angus cattle enterprise keep him conservation-minded. All cattle and forage management decisions on Buck Run Farm are influenced by conservation practices that will maintain the natural beauty, foliage, and wildlife habitat of the land.

After retiring from a career in medical research, Elkins purchased Buck Run Farm in 1984. It was originally part of the King Ranch that was sold under the Brandywine Conservancy, in an attempt to preserve the natural beauty and habitats of the land, and to prevent further pollution of the creeks that feed the Brandywine River, a main source of drinking water for the city of Wilmington, Del. By limiting his cattle to designated crossing and watering areas on Buck Run Creek, he has not only improved the stream, but also increased its populations of small mouth bass and trout.

The first conservation practice Elkins initiated in his cattle operation was controlled grazing. This enabled him to go from grazing 50 cows on 300 acres to grazing 100 head on 180 acres. Pasture fertility and production also has improved over the past nine years with minimal use of commercial fertilizers.

Planting trees has brought major improvements to the farm over the years as well. Saplings are planted along stream banks, inhibiting soil erosion and strengthening the stream banks when they mature. Trees are planted along ditches for the same reason. Many trees have been planted for natural shelter and windbreaks, as well as to divide fields.

Foraging cattle are an important part of Elkins' conservation program. The more cattle forage for themselves, the less erosion occurs from tractors, the less fuel and exhaust is expelled, and more manure is evenly spread, which minimizes the need for commercial fertilizer application.

To minimize nutrient transfer from pasture to shaded areas in eastern Pennsylvania's hot and humid summers, Elkins built a 40 x 20-foot portable shelter out of steel pipe and shade cloth. Each shelter accommodates about 20 cow-calf pairs. It's moved every day to evenly spread manure around the field.

Elkins has been an active member and leader of the Pennsylvania Environmental Council; the Stroud Foundation; the Buck & Doe Association, a group that oversees preservation of Buck & Doe Watershed; the Natural Land Trust of Philadelphia; and the World Wild Life Fund.

William Elkins, Coatesville, believes his farm should work as an ecosystem between the land and the cattle, with less interference by man. He purchased Buck Run Farm in 1984, where he raises 100 head of registered Angus cows.

Elkins and three other regional Land Stewardship Award winners will be honored at the 112th Annual Meeting of the American Angus Association Nov. 12 in Louisville, Ky. He was nominated for the award by Dale and Carolyn Stoltzfus, Coatesville.

livestock. Although the poultry size limitations are small, this program could help small operations satisfy their environmental requirements and will certainly help other livestock operators, decreasing somewhat the pressure put on the environment by agriculture.

Overall, poultry and eggs emerged from this farm bill with much more than the program commodities. Since the logic of having some commodities be under programs and others not was never very sound, it is only appropriate that non-program commodities get some benefits from the 1995 Farm Bill.

AITC "The Symbol of Quality in Engineered Timber"

Ag Economist Thinks $3.50 Corn Possible

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Producers gleeful over the recent rally in the markets should hang on to their hats, because a bigger jump may be on the way, said an Ohio State University agricultural economist.

Allan Lines thinks $3.50 per bushel corn prices "may be in the cards" by the time all is said and done on this supply-short market. In fact, markets are defying the harvest glut's law of gravity that makes it difficult to establish new highs in the fall for cash and distant futures prices.

"Conventional wisdom suggests a 'short crop-long tail' pricing pattern should develop . . . There is a good chance prices will rise into mid-winter before the tail begins," Lines said. "It will come. Price and when are the questions."

With current bullish projections, producers can afford to wait and see before selling because downside risk is minimal for now, Lines said. Producers should also look ahead to price some of the 1996 crop since $3-per-bushel prices at harvest are not likely two years in a row. "Take some of the current action in the $2.60 arena," he said.

Lines' prognoses are based on recent USDA figures (released Oct. 11) that adjusted the national yield down to 116.6 bushels per acre compared to September's projection of 121.1 bushels per acre, and is also down from last year's 139 bushels per acre average, and below the five-year average of 119.58 bushels per acre.

With total production pegged at 7.54 billion bushels — a 25 percent drop from last year — ending stocks are projected to be at a 20-year low of 685 million bushels. The last time ending stocks were as low was two years ago when carryout was 850 million bushels, and prices averaged $2.50 per bushel, Lines said. What's different this time is that world coarse grain output is down 30 percent from last year and down 25 percent from two years ago.

"The U.S. is short, and the world is short," Lines said. "The market is in untested water."

For Ohio, USDA projects an average yield of 122 bushels per acre, unchanged from the September projection. It's down from last year's 139 bushels per acre and about the same as the five-year average of 121.8 bushels per acre. Total production is pegged at 384.3 million bushels, or down 21 percent from last year's record 486.5 million bushels.

As for soybeans, Lines thinks $7-per-bushel prices are possible, given a production estimate 13 percent below last year's, and sharply tighter stocks. USDA projects a 2.19-billion bushel national crop compared to last year's 2.52 billion-bushel crop. Average yield is projected at 35.5 bushels per acre, down from last year's record 41.1 bushels per acre, but about equal with a 35.98 bushels-per-acre five-year average.

"Expect higher bean prices into the marketing year," Lines said. "It's probably not a 'short crop-long tail' situation."

Here's why:

• Demand remains strong. Domestic crush remains at the same level of last year's 1.4 billion bushels. Meanwhile, a 33 percent hike in export inspections early in the marketing year casts some doubts on expectations that exports will soften.

• Supply-wise, carryout is 220 million bushels, among the lowest since the 1988 drought. That year, an 11 percent stocks/use ratio produced a $7.35 per bushel average price. Although the projected stocks/use ratio is at 10 percent, the hworld oilseed situation is not critically tight.

• Soy oil price is expected to weaken, while meal price continues to strengthen. The teeter-totter effect could add an additional 85 cents to last year's average price. So far, USDA's midpoint average price projection of $6.75 per bushel is up $1.30 from last year. Current prices are at the lower end of the USDA range: $6.25-$7.25.

"It's difficult for me, but as you can tell, my usual 'bear' has sprouted 'bullish' horns," Lines said.

As for Ohio production, USDA projects a 3.6 percent drop from last year's 173.6 million bushels to 167.3 million bushels. Yields are projected at 41 bushels per acre, down from 43.5 bushels per acre last year, but still higher than the five-year average of 39.3 bushels per acre.

Composting Research, Education Center Opens

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Rodale Institute President John Haberern has announced the opening of a Composting Research and Education Center located on the grounds of the 333-acre Rodale Institute Experimental Farm in Kutztown.

"Our two-acre facility is the first of its kind in this country and quite possibly the world," Haberern said. "Its opening is the culmination of several years of planning between the staff and scientists here at the Institute and staff members and scientists at the USDA."

The Composting Research and Education Center will serve three main functions. As a unique research facility, it will test compostable materials not only for their efficiency and economy (alone and in combination with other materials), but also for the potential impact on ground and surface water of those materials and management regimes.

A second use of the Composting Center will be educational. Future home of the Rodale School of Practical Composting, the site is expected to draw farmers, nursery growers, greenhouse operators, landscape managers, and other professionals from around the world interested in incorporating composting into their waste management or soil improvement practices.

"We will offer week-long courses at the Center on a variety of topics from production through use, combining both classroom instruction and hands-on learning," said Cary Oshins, composting specialist at the Rodale Institute. The Institute expects to hold the first course in the autumn of 1996.

Thirdly, the Compost Center will function as the model site for the Institute's own compost production which is used for its Compost Utilization Trial (CUT) and general farm production. The CUT is a long-term field trial comparing several different compost mixtures to each other as well as to more conventional fertilizers. The Rodale Institute scientists who have been running the CUT since 1991, are testing whether the use of compost over conventional fertilizers or raw farmyard manures will lead to reduced nutrient loss and groundwater pollution.

Offering all-weather access and appropriate environmental protection, the Institute hopes the Composting Research and Education Center will be used by the Department of Environmental Protection, the Conservation District, the Conservation Service, and others to study the economic and environmental impacts of increased compost use.

The facility is funded in part by the USDA's Alternative Agriculture Research and Commercialization (AARC) Center. AARC supports private individuals or companies in bridging the gap between research results and commercialization of that research, thereby complementing the USDA's research agencies. Preference is given to projects that are environmentally friendly and benefit rural communities.

"The Institute is currently accepting proposals for compost research projects and collaborations," said Oshins. "We are particularly interested in linking production and utilization research."

According to Haberern, the purpose of this facility is congruent with the ongoing goals of Rodale Institute. "We want to educate people all over the world about the importance of protecting and improving our soil. Healthy soil is the first step in producing healthy food," he said. "Soil not only provides a growing medium, it also influences the water we drink and even the air we breathe."

Lumber House Reopens

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Musselman Lumber Inc. held an open house this week to celebrate its grand opening of its new facility, constructed to replace the one destroyed by fire in June 1994.

The company thanked the many loyal supporters during the difficult and challenging year.

The company, which has been in business since 1911, supplies lumber, millwork, trusses, roofing, siding, and hardware to the community.

Series Provides Quick, Easy Nozzle Selection

WHEATON, Ill.—Spraying Systems Co. introduces the newest advancement in nozzle body design technology, the Quick TeeJet® 360 nozzle body series.

The 360 features a compact, rugged design that positions up to five spray nozzles in a 360 degree circular pattern for maximum application flexibility.

Unlike other nozzle bodies, the 360's unique design may be equipped with either three, four, or five outlets. It features positive shutoffs between each outlet, allowing the applicator to easily shut off individual spray tips. The 360 also features the reliable ChemSaver® diaphragm check valve for drip-free shutoff.

The new Quick TeeJet® 360 nozzle body series provides fast and convenient spray tip selection.

According to Dr. Steve Pearson, director of technical services for Spraying Systems Co., an important advantage of the 360 is efficient nozzle selection.

"While its compact design is very durable, the 360 enables the operator to choose up to five varieties of nozzle types or capacities on a single boom," said Pearson. "With today's requirements for nozzles that manage drift or others that maximize plant coverage, and the need for changes in application rates, the 360 saves time and money by improving efficiency."

Serve Mail-Order Meats During Holiday

HATFIELD (Montgomery Co.)—While meat by mail may not be as common as neckties, perfumes or fruitcakes, it's actually a very popular holiday gift, according to Hatfield Quality Meats.

This year, for the tenth year in a row, the purveyor of fresh and processed pork products is offering a selection of food gifts by mail for the holiday season, and is anticipating a great number of orders.

"Food, in general, has become a popular mail order gift item over the past several years. Any mail order gift is convenient for the gift giver, and food gifts can be at once practical and indulgent for the recipient," said Hatfield Quality Meats Marketing Manager Rusty Ryan.

"Everybody, of course, has to eat, but the exotic fruits, high-end candies, delicious seafood and prime meats now available by mail order are extra special treats whether from a close friend, family member, employer, or supplier."

As proof of this growing trend, what began as a simple one page gift list at Hatfield Quality Meats a decade ago has grown into a stylish, full-color, 10-page catalog full of gift giving suggestions for nearly every taste, lifestyle and budget. Not only does its offerings include an extensive collection of hams, but also special gift packages that allow the recipient to savor the flavor of a variety of pork products.

1995 Important Year For Soil Testing

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — "Having this summer end in a drought makes this a very important year for fall soil testing. This is the time of year that farmers need to be making their nutrient management plans for next year's crops," said Martin Campfield, director of agronomic services, Nutrient Solutions in Agriculture, a division of Gro-Mor Plant Food Company.

Campfield emphasizes that an inventory of available soil nutrients (from a soil test) should be coupled with a manure analysis.

Nutrient Solutions contracts with Myers Analytical Lab in Manchester, Md., to complete manure tests to help determine where and when to apply manure.

It would be preferable to do nutrient management plans in August or September so that fall manure applications can be taken into consideration. However, most planning is still being done anytime from September through April.

Said Campfield, "Having a nutrient management plan for your acreage involves more than just having soil tests done. A nutrient management plan needs to take a comprehensive look at the flow of nutrients through the farm. This includes the inputs, the outputs, and those nutrients lost to nature."

The plan needs to include field histories, manure storage and spreading schedules, a crop rotation plan, traditional fertilizer practices, and a summary of individual nutrients by field.

Campfield is a certified professional agronomist and a Pennsylvania certified crop advisor with many years of field experience.

Campfield said a good nutrient management begins with a soil test, which should include more than just pH, P, and K results. Their reports contain 19-21 readings, including major and micronutrients, along with pH and organic matter values.

Deere Adds 73-HP Model To 5000 Series

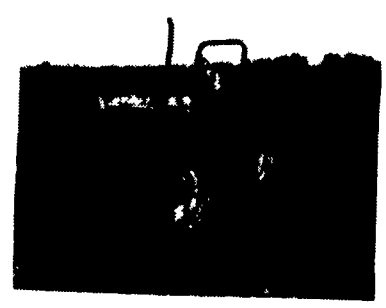
MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has expanded the power and performance range of its 5000 Series tractor lineup with the addition of the 73-PTO-hp 5500 Tractor.

The company also announced that it will offer an optional, factory-installed cab for all standard 5000 Series Tractors, including the new model 5500, beginning early next year.

Compared to the standard 40-hp 5200, 50-hp 5300, and 60-hp 5400 tractors, the model 5500 has more horsepower, greater hydraulic flow for operating implements, and a longer wheelbase for enhanced ride quality.

The new model is also heavier to complement its higher power and performance capacities. (Besides the standard models, John Deere also produces two narrow models — the 60-hp 5400N and 73-hp 5500N — for orchards and applications where space is limited.)

The 5500 Tractor is powered by a 4-cylinder, 239-cubic inch, turbocharged John Deere diesel rated at 83 engine hp and 73 PTO hp.



The John Deere 5500 tractor is powered by a 239-cubic inch (3.9L), four-cylinder, turbocharged John Deere diesel rated at 73 PTO horsepower. The optional hydraulic reverser transmission provides 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds and the convenience of power shift direction changes.

An engine oil cooler, together with a larger radiator and fan, ensure ample cooling capacity at this power level. A 22-gal. fuel tank and the fuel-efficient John Deere engine keep the tractor in the field a long time between fueling stops.

Monsanto Chooses YieldGard As Trademark

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Monsanto Company has chosen YieldGard as the trademark for its insect-protected corn, now awaiting regulatory approval.

"YieldGard insect-protected corn by Monsanto was designed to guard the yield of corn against insect pests such as the European corn borer," said Tom Klevorn, business director for Monsanto's improved corn products.

YieldGard corn will contain a protective trait derived from a naturally occurring microorganism found in soil. This trait protects the plant from the European corn borer and other insect pests in the family of lepidoptera.

YieldGard corn will be made available to growers through leading seed company partners after it completes the regulatory review processes. Seed that carries the built-in protection will display the trademark on its name-brand packaging.

Diversey Introduces Post Teat Dip

LIVONIA, Mich. — Diversey, a global supplier of milk parlor sanitation chemicals and udder health products, introduces Thixodip BA, a thixotropic post teat dip.

This product is based on benzyl alcohol bactericide, which is an approved food additive, and 10 percent glycerin for maintaining excellent teat conditioning.

Thixodip BA's unique technology has adhering properties allowing the dip to remain on the teat and not drip off on the parlor floor. With non-thixotropic dips, such as iodines, 50 percent of the product usually drips off.

Thixodip BA has 90 percent retention on the teat skin, giving you a money-saving product. Five gallons of Thixodip BA will last as long as seven gallons of non-thixotropic dips.

With its antimicrobial and thixotropic properties, Thixodip BA aids in reducing the occurrence of mastitis.

'Passing On Farm' Topic Of Towanda Workshop

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)—There are 44,000 farms in Pennsylvania and 45 percent of the current farm operators are age 55 or older. In the next 10 years, 10,000 of Pennsylvania's farms, or nearly one-quarter of our farms, need to be transfered to the next generation.

Working to assist in the transfer of family farms in Pennsylvania and in turn contribute to the revitalization of our rural communities, the Pennsylvania Farm Link program is sponsoring a Beginning and Retiring Farmer Workshop at the Bradford County Extension Office, Towanda, on Tuesday, Dec. 5.

The regional workshop will address "passing on the farm" issues, business planning, farm loan resources, marketing ideas, start-up strategies, goal setting, and communication skills.

It will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. with lunch on your own. Participating agencies and individuals include Pennsylvania Farm Link, Penn State Cooperative Extension, Northeast Farm Credit, Bradford County Rural Economic and Community Development Service (formerly Farmers Home Administration), and a panel of local farmers. The extension office is located off of Route 6 at 701 S. 4th Street.

According to Farm Link Coordinator Marion Bowlan, in spite of the decline in family farms in Pennsylvania and the obstacles that deter all but the most devoted, many Pennsylvanians are looking for ways to get into farming and continue with our state's major industry. She cites as evidence the overwhelming response received by the Farm Link program and its beginning and retiring farmer workshops. More than 600 inquiries from beginning and retiring farmers were received since the program's mid-July 1994 start-up, and workshops have been filled to overflowing capacity.

In Pennsylvania and the nation, people are finding it increasingly difficult to acquire the capital needed to enter farming. USDA attributes at least 25 percent of the recent decline in farm numbers to new people not being able to get into farming. At the same time, Pennsylvania's current farm operators are graying.

The average age of a farmer in Pennsylvania is now over 52 and commonwealth farms are disappearing at a rate of 1,000 per year. Many farmers reaching retirement age are having difficulty phasing out of farming while maintaining adequate resources for retirement. Farm Link is looking for innovative ways for retiring farmers to gradually transfer their farms to the next generation while keeping more of the money in their pockets.

Individuals who want to enter farming or farmers considering retirement are invited to attend this workshop on Tuesday, Dec. 5 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Individuals involved in tree farming are also urged to attend.

There is no cost to attend; however, preregistration is necessary. Please call the Farm Link program at (800) 9PA-FARM by Friday, Dec. 1, to make your reservations.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—The 10 producers who registered the most Angus beef cattle in the state of Pennsylvania recorded a total of 593 Angus with the American Angus Association during fiscal year 1995 which ended Sept. 30, according to Richard L. Spader, association executive vice president.

The 10 top recorders in Pennsylvania are South Branch Farms, Seven Valleys, 128 head; Work Land & Cattle Company, Uniontown, 69; Burleigh Anderson, Loysville, 60; McKean Brothers, Mercer, 47; Sidney Riggs, Friedens, 47 head; Shawnee Angus Farms, New Enterprise, 45; Fred Frey & Sons, Quarryville, 43; Logan Spring Farm, Bellwood, 40; Clearview Acres, Eldersville, 38 head; Erdenheim Farm, Lafayette Hill, 38; and Simmons Oak Farm, Chadds Ford, 38.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

The major costs on dairy and livestock farms are related to FEED: production...harvesting...storage...purchases...delivery to animals. Significant savings in time and money are possible when you store and deliver your feed from a poured concrete silo.

"As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: This can have as great an influence on Profit as milk price changes."

Protect your valuable feeds from rain, sleet, snow, mud, ice, wind and the sun's heat. Reduce the stress, INCREASE THE EFFICIENCY OF YOUR FEEDS, LABOR, AND LIVESTOCK!

At Sollenberger Silos Corp. we know a lot about feed storage and handling; we've been in the business since 1908. If your plans call for new feed storage, give us a call...We'd like to contribute to your success!!

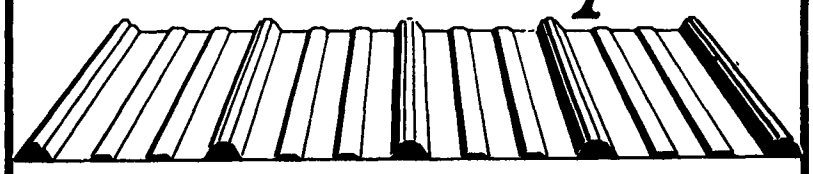
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain™ roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

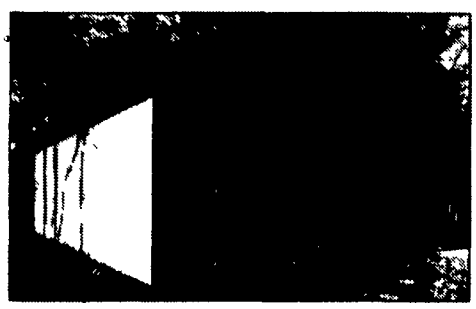
Side with Alumax ALU-TUFF Steel



When you put up a building, you expect it to be attractive and to last. A building constructed with ALU-TUFF will meet those expectations. That's because ALU-TUFF is made using top-quality materials, super-tough protective coatings, and a unique rib design that's both functional and attractive.

Years from now when other buildings are starting to show their age, your building will still look good.

- A STRONG PROFILE
  High 3/4-inch ribs on nine-inch centers give ALU-TUFF exceptionally high spanning properties for its weight and thickness, while stiffening ribs in flat areas prevent rippling.
- MADE TO LAST
  To keep Alu-Tuff working hard and looking good for years to come, we protect it with an oven-cured system of four different coatings.
- A GREAT LOOKING PANEL
  You don't have to sacrifice good looks to get a tough steel panel.
- MORE QUALITY FEATURES
  Each ALU-TUFF sheet is 38 inches wide to provide 36-inch coverage. That's wide enough to minimize the number of side laps, yet narrow enough to be easy to handle.

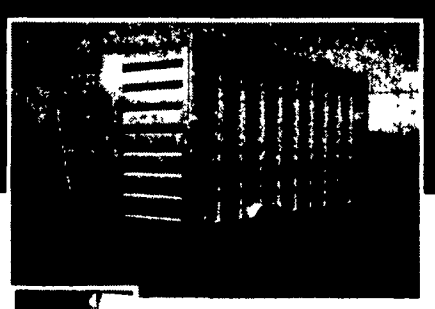
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

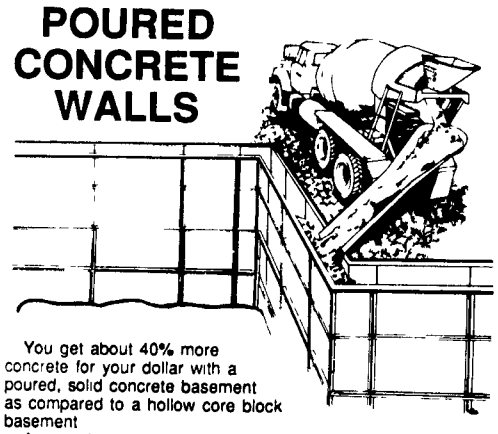
POURED SOLID CONCRETE
STORAGE SYSTEM SPECIALISTS

START WITH THE BEST!
POURED CONCRETE WALLS



You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured, solid concrete basements are competitively priced

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks
- Concrete Pit Tops

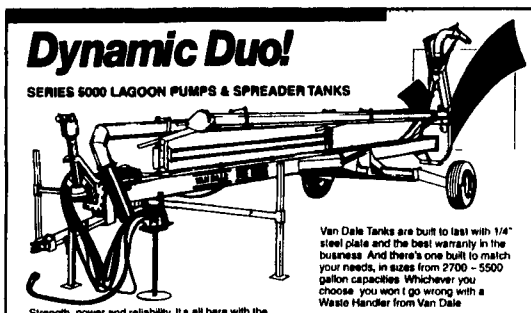
Dynamic Duo!
SERIES 5000 LAGOON PUMPS & SPREADER TANKS



Van Dale Tanks are built to last with 1/4" steel plate and the best warranty in the business. And there's one built to match your needs, in sizes from 2700 - 5500 gallon capacities. Whichever you choose, you won't go wrong with a Waste Handler from Van Dale.

These pumps have the perfect combination of agitation volume and pressure needed to break up hard surface crust or bottom manure solids with speed and power. And with up to 5000 G.P.M. agitation capacity, it can blast a stream of manure 100' or more in any direction to create an easy pumping and spreading slurry. The new Series 5000 trailer mounted or 3-point hitch, by far the lightest and easiest to operate pumps on the market.

JUMBO BALES

A Case International 8580 large rectangular baler makes JUMBO bales - up to 2,000 pounds.

It compresses hay equivalent to about 40 conventional bales into a single high-density package. The high-end capacity and performance of the 8580 means you can push these big bales through the machine all day — every day. That's a lot of hay!

And it's quality hay, too. The centerline design handles the crop gently to preserve nutritious leaves. The bales are uniformly shaped for efficient handling and shipping.

The 8580 also has a full list of standard features. Low-profile pickup, pre-packed chamber, massive gearbox, heavy-duty components throughout, electronic monitoring, double-tie knotters and low maintenance. And it's simple to operate. The Case International 8590 is a JUMBO value, too.

See Binkley & Hurst Bros. Your Dealer Who Knows Balers!

You can equip them to work just the way you want for field or mowing operations A choice of adjustable axles and rims gives you the right stance for specialty or row-crop applications Transmission offerings include an optional creeper-speed or push-button powershift for added versatility And high-capacity PTOs provide strength for your toughest auger and haying chores.

On the Category II 3-pt. hitch, separate levers give you precise control over the hitch draft, raise, drop and position levels for fieldwork And on all models except the 3220, an optional cab will keep you fresh on those long workdays

Binkley & Hurst Bros. For Quality Rock Pickers & Rakes NOW! REMOVE ROCKS BEFORE FALL SEEDING

Grated Hopper Bottom
We use spring steel straps in the hopper instead of using milder steel. The hopper is engineered to bounce back in shape.
Hydraulic Drive
The most popular drive on rock pickers is hydraulic which is standard on the 6000. We have incorporated a relief valve to take away the shock when disengaging the drive.
Flotation Tires
The 16.5Lx16.1 flotation tires are standard equipment and are a must to reduce soil compaction.

Reel Assembly
We are using the same reel as the proven Super Picker 6800. The three paddel reel has a large diameter, hard surfaced teeth and heavy duty paddles.

Swing Pole
The manual swing pole is easy to maneuver in both working or transport position.
Solid Shaft Grill Tines with Replaceable Grill Tips.
This modern grill is easier to maintain, has longer life giving you less down time. The unique grill provides five feet of clean shifting and virtually jamless performance.

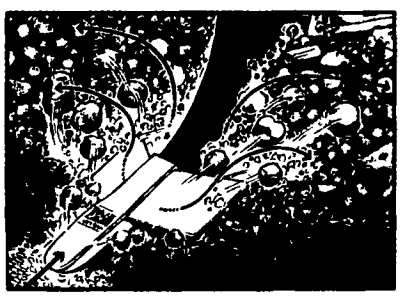
CONSERVATION TILLAGE SYSTEMS

Whether you are concerned about SOIL COMPACTION or RESIDUE MANAGEMENT

DMI

ECOLOTIL TILLAGE SYSTEMS Solve Your Problems!!!



DMI's Patented Point Makes The Difference

ECOLOTIL SYSTEMS

DMI SYSTEM	Min. HP Required
3 Shank Ecolotil	80
5 Shank Ecolotil	130
527 Ecolotiger	130
530 Ecolotiger	170
730 Ecolotiger	250

Each of these machines can be equipped to meet your particular needs. Your choices include shank style, shank arrangement, coulters/ discs, rear levelers or point style.

Soil Compaction is a problem on every farm we've checked. Breaking up the compaction layer

1) decreases soil run-off in wet years, by permitting water to percolate into the subsoil

2) makes room for plant roots systems to seek and find moisture in dry years

YOUR FIELDS PRODUCE MORE CROPS...

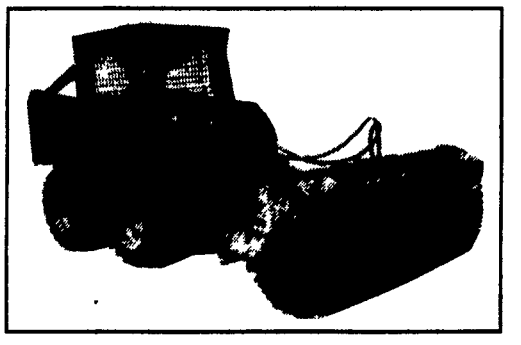
SWEEPSTER



HYDRAULIC DRIVE SWEEPERS FOR SKID STEERS

FOUR SEASONS - FOUR REASONS
Power sweepers are multi-purpose four season, clean-up machines. Clean snow all Winter from streets, driveways and building entrances. In the Spring, keep your sweeper busy removing debris from intersections and roadsides. Remove thatch and get turf areas in shape for the Summer growing season. Sweep gravel, sand and trash from bridges, parking lots and sidewalks. In the Fall, sweep up leaves and pine needles before the snow flies.
